Mead operation back to normal

Injunction halts pickets at plant

BY ED SUMMERS

Operations at the Mead Containers Corp. plant in the Washington C. H. Industrial Park have returned to normal today following the issuance of a temporary restraining order Tuesday afternoon by Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman prohibiting picketing by striking Chillicothe plant employes.

Robert R. Gestrich, general manager of the Mead Containers Corp. here, said there were no pickets at the Washington C. H. plant today and that plant operations were back to normal levels.

Attorneys for the Mead Corporation had asked for the restraining order after members of two unions on strike at Mead's Chillicothe paper mill set up picket lines at the Washington C. H. plant Tuesday morning. Local employes on the first shift had refused to cross the lines due to "health and safety reasons." Some second shift employes did report to work, however.

The restraining order also enjoins employes at the container plant from participating in a strike, walkout, or picketing and restrains them from refusing to report to work because of outside picket activity.

According to the injunction filed by Mead Corporation attorneys, the picket lines and refusal of members of Local Union 1070 to cross the lines violated the union's agreement with the company. They also asked for $25,000 damages to compensate for lost revenue for each day the employes refused to cross picket lines.

Gestrich said the Mead Containers plant here was entirely separate and independent from Mead Corp. paper plant in Chillicothe and was not involved in any way with the Chillicothe labor dispute.

The two Chillicothe unions, Local 731 and Local 988 of the United Paperworkers International Union, went on strike Aug. 11, ten days after the expiration of their contract. The major issue in the strike is a proposed reduction in the company's pension plan.

An estimated 2,500 workers at the Chillicothe plant have been idled by the strike. The company's Escanaba, Mich., plant is also on strike.

Three issues eyed for ballot

City to draft measure for tax levy renewals

Washington C.H. City Council during a special session Tuesday night agreed to prepare legislation to place three tax levy renewals, totaling 2.3 mills, on the November general election ballot.

Emergency legislation placing a one-mill general operating levy, a one-mill police protection levy and a .30-mill levy for the operation of the Washington Cemetery will be considered at Council's next regular session on Aug. 27.

City officials are actually asking Washington C.H. voters to renew two one-mill tax levies which will expire effective Dec. 31 and the .30-mill cemetery levy which expired last December.

The tax levy issues must be submitted to the Fayette County Board of Elections before a Sept. 6 deadline in order that they can be included on the Nov. 4 ballot. A simple majority would be required for approval of the levies.

One-mill storm sewer and general operating levies expire on Dec. 31. However, City Council members are replacing the one-mill storm sewer renewal with a one-mill levy to provide funds for the operation of the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Both the one-mill general operating levy and the one-mill storm sewer levy, which is being replaced by the police protection levy, were approved by Washington C.H. voters in the fall of 1970 and were placed on the 1970 tax duplicate with distributions for five-year periods.

In order for the city to receive distribution of the tax levies in 1976, they must be renewed in November and placed on the 1975 tax duplicate.

The .30-mill cemetery operating levy expired in 1974. Council members had agreed to let the levy expire as part of an offer to exchange 4.3 mills in property taxes for a 1.25 per cent income tax. Washington C.H. voters rejected the city drawn plan in the November election.

Since the cemetery levy expired, nearly $11,000 has been taken from the city's general fund for the operation of the cemetery.

Fayette County auditor Mary Morris has estimated that the present valuation for the city is $38,556,352. Under the present valuation, the two one-mill levies would generate approximately $38,556 apiece per year and the .30-mill cemetery levy would produce about $11,574 per year for a total revenue of approximately $88,686.

Two other one-mill tax levies presently on the tax duplicate will expire in 1976. They are the one-mill fire protection and street improvement levies. Both were approved in the spring of 1971 and placed on the 1971 tax duplicate.

THREE PIECES of emergency legislation were unanimously approved by City Council members during Tuesday night's special session. Council member John E. Rhoads was absent.

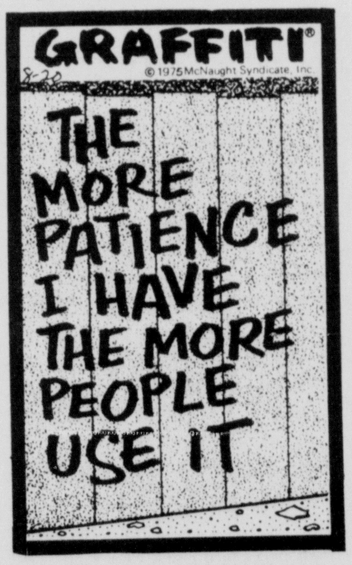

Approved were:

—a measure renewing a $42,000 street resurfacing note for a one-year period;

—legislation to reduce the speed limit to 15 miles per hour on Oakland Avenue between N. North Street and Millikan Avenue in the vicinity of the Washington Park Association's swimming pool and Eyman Park; and —an ordinance designating the Huntington Bank, the First National Bank and the Fayette County Bank as depositories for active city funds. Under previsions in the ordinance, the Huntington Bank will receive 45.72 per cent of the funds; the First National Bank, 42.86 per cent, and the Fayette County Bank, 11.42 per cent. The banks will serve as the depositories for active city funds for a two-year period beginning Aug. 23. Council has estimated that the amount of active

Minimum raised from $7,250 to $7,400

County board OKs base salary hikes for district's teachers

By MARK THELLMANN

Beginning teachers salaries in the Miami Trace School District were raised from $7,250 to $7,400 during Tuesday night's regular Fayette County Board of Education meeting.

The $7,400 figure is the new minimum salary expected to be instated by Ohio Gov. James Rhodes' signature in the very near future. The bill, which has been passed by both the house and senate on the state level, is presently on the governor's desk. Assistant Superintendent Steve Yambor discussed many points on the agenda in the absence of Superintendent Guy Foster. Yambor explained when Senate Bill No. 170 is finally signed by the governor several salary modifications will become effective.

"First of all, we are sorry we can only meet minimum salary requirements established by the bill," Yambor stated. "But we don't have the money to exceed the new state minimum at this point. The per cent of increase from $7,250 to $7,400, which figures out to be two per cent, will be applied to all certified employes salaries starting Aug. 28 and all non-certified employes starting Sept. 1."

Yambor added it should be remembered the bill makes provisions to hike the minimum to $7,900 during the 1976-1977 school year.

Other matters dealt with by board members concerning school personnel including beginning coverage of Blue Cross and Blue Shield starting Oct. 1 for the newly employed, employment, changes in contracts and resignations.

Richard Glass of Huntington, W. Va., was employed as the Miami Trace High School vocal music teacher. Recommended for employment to the board were teachers, Joan Rhoads and Nancy Johnson on a salary schedule for the two women had been teaching under temporary certificates and are now eligible for one-year contracts.

After passing a resolution to enter into a cooperative agreement to provide learning disabilities supervisor services for the Miami Trace School District and authorizing the Washington C.H. School District to count 650 Miami Trace School District students in order to apply for a full-time unit for psychological services, the board recommended Susan Gosset as the learning disabilities supervisor a one-year contract. Her services will be under a cooperative agreement with Washington C.H., Greenfield and Fairfield and each of these districts will be assessed about $150 per LD unit for costs beyond foundational program payments.

Elementary coordinator June Slaughter announced the resignation of teachers, LaVern Dickey (Madison Mills Elementary School) and Norilee Zimmerman (Wayne Elementary School). Mrs. Slaughter also stated Karen Shook will change from a full-time contract to a part-time contract in teaching music; Lila Engle will be accredited with two additional years teaching experience than what she had been originally, with salary adjustments in accord and Penny Johnson, who has completed her master's work, will also be granted a salary adjustment. Board members approved these changes.

Dockworkers return to piers

Load grain, judge orders

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Under a federal court order, longshoremen here resumed loading grain today aboard a ship bound for the Soviet Union.

The longshoremen had stopped loading wheat aboard a Yugoslav freighter, the Bosanka, in the Port of Houston late Monday, contending the sale of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union would cause domestic food prices to increase.

U.S. District Court Judge James Noel granted the West Gulf Maritime Shippers Association a temporary restraining order Tuesday night after being told by lawyers for the international Longshoremen Association — ILA — the workers "would not return without a court order."

Noel then scheduled a hearing for today on the shippers' plea for a permanent injunction aimed at preventing future work stoppages involving the loading of grain purchased by the Soviet Union.

ILA officials said Tuesday their international headquarters had said to halt loading such grain "until there is assurance the sale of this wheat would not be inimical to the American people."

Noel's order applied to longshoremen from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., but those in Houston were the only ones immediately affected.

The shippers asked Noel to order the longshoremen to live up to the terms of their contract, which forbids work stoppages.

The Bosanka was loading part of the 1.2 million metric tons of grain Cargill Inc., Minneapolis, is shipping to Russia under 1975 contracts.

An attorney for the ILA here had said the no-work directive aimed at Soviet grain would remain in effect "until there is assurance that the sale of this wheat would not be inimical to the American people."

Willie Wells, the president of ILA Local 1273, said the dock workers also want to see that U.S. ships and the American seamen who sail them share in transportation of the grain to Russia.

Noel asked ILA leaders Tuesday to tell the longshoremen to return to work, but he was told that the workers "would not return without a court order." He then issued the temporary restraining order and set the hearing on a permanent injunction.

West Coast longshoremen, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, say they will load Soviet grain.

The ILA work stoppage was criticized by government and farm leaders.

President Ford said in Minneapolis Tuesday, "I think it's in the best interests of the American consumer and I think it's in the best interests of the labor movement to permit the shipment of this wonderful commodity that we produce."

Ford said he hoped it would be possible to find a way to ship grain which has already been contracted for by the Soviet Union, as well as that which might be purchased in the future.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a White House conference on domestic and economic affairs at Peoria, Ill.:

"If the unions ... are so concerned about high food prices they should stop some of the feather-bedding that jacks up those very prices."

Russia has already purchased 9.8 million metric tons of wheat, corn and barley this year, compared with purchases of about 19 million metric tons in 1972 that helped send domestic prices spiraling.

Grain ripoff upsets customers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The great ripoff along the grain docks here has upset foreign customers to the extent that many export buyers now pay extra just to make sure they get what they pay for.

Harlan Ryan, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's grain division here, said 40 per cent of the grain shipped out of New Orleans these days is federally inspected.

"It's working us to a frazzle," said Ryan.

Normally, his 57 inspectors merely spot check the accuracy of private USDA-licensed agencies which grade and inspect corn, wheat, soybeans and other grains loaded onto ships in this port area.

Full federal inspection was unusual.

But criminal profits in the millions are reported skimmed off the $14 billion worth of grain exported annually and a continuing federal investigation of theft and fraud has resulted in indictments against 48 men and four companies at New Orleans, with more expected.

In reaction, some buyers for export have taken to making "federal appeals" in order to bypass private grain inspectors.

It costs an extra $2.25 per 1,000 bushels for federal inspection, plus $18.30 per overtime hour, with inspectors working 15 hours a day.

The hours are often unpleasant, since private inspectors go through the motions of the job right beside the federal men. Ryan calls it "a true exercise in futility."

A ship that recently took aboard 1.4 million bushels of Iowa corn had a federal inspection bill that totaled $22,203.

The $22,203 bought federal assurance that the ship was clean; the corn not sour or infested with weevils; that it was of good No. 2 yellow grade, not a lesser grade palmed off as No. 2 at the same price; and that there actually were 1.4 million bushels in the holds.

Foreign buyers have long complained about short weights and misgrading, but they had little recourse once it was delivered.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, attached heavy political significance to the fact that sheer market pressure already had forced a private inspection system to become 40 per cent federal.

"It goes to show that somebody, like the customers, believes in a federal inspection system," said Clark.

His reform bill to create such a system, financed by fees, has drawn opposition from the Ford administration, on the grounds that there is a need for less federal regulation, not more.

The textbook lists for both the elementary schools and the high school were approved by board members, as was a Bloomingburg School student handbook compiled over the summer by Principal Tom LeVan who was present at last night's meeting to introduce the publication.

The following teachers, cooks, custodians and bus drivers were employed as substitutes by board members: bus drivers - Howard Pinkerton, Cecil Harris, Donna Pendleton, Kenny Summers, Walter Hurtt, Howard Stewart, Thurman Brown, Rheta Colvin and Elmo Wilson; custodians - Rufus Newman, Dorothy Newman, Howard Runnels, and Betty Runnels; cooks - Patricia Ratliff, Barbara Riley, Bessie Allen, Harriett Smith, Urcel Burke, Virginia Smith, Nellie Scaggs, Norman Jean Puckett, Cathryn Jenkins, Norma Hoppes, Juleah Perril, Maxine Rumer, Edith Knox, Karen Winters, Marlene Merritt, Lurena Hickle, Mary Creamer, Jeri Park, Joan Straley, Dorothy Spradlin, Ethel Wood, Alice Long, Margaret Garringer, Laura Huff, Gladys Warner, Dorothy Wheeler, Barbara Toppins, Emily Bireley and Daisy Swyers;

David Bihl, Earl Berisford, Lorraine Bower, Jane Campbell, Clara Mae Domby, Frances DeWeese, Elizabeth Foster, Mary Belle Garringer, Grace Iden, Louise Jordon, Diana Kirkpatrick, Paul Metzger, Robert Parrett, Terry Sword, Mary Lou Williams.

The school bus insurance contract was given by board members to Bill Pool Insurance and the trash hauling contract was awarded to Cartwright Hauling.

A food service policy was adopted by board members and price increases approved. Elementary student lunches were set at 55 cents, high school lunches at 60 cents and adults at 65 cents. An extra half-pint of milk for students was established at six cents and adults 11 cents. The high school will also offer an ala carte line with individually priced items.

Ruth Anders was employed on a six-hour working day schedule as a high school cook and Margaret Garringer was employed three hours a day as a cashier by board members.

The hourly pay scale for teachers involved with tutoring students who cannot attend school because of pregnancy, physcial injury or mishaps was raised from $4 to $5 per hour by the board.

Board members approved the list presented to them concerning students with handicaps who attend school out of district on a tuition basis. They also granted one parent $4 a day for taking her son to a bus in Jamestown and another parent 11 cents per mile per student (three students) who she drives to Columbus and back weekdays.

A kindergarten schedule which would have half the pupils attend Monday, Wednesday and every other Friday and the other half attend Tuesday, Thursday and the alternating Fridays was presented by Mrs. Slaughter and approved by board members.

Mrs. Slaughter explained to board members a plan allowing some Staunton second graders to attend Chaffin School and some Chaffin first graders to attend Staunton School, plus students from North Shore, Rosemont and Leslie Trace Court to attend Bloomingburg School instead of Eber. This student juggling plan is to balance class loads. The board approved.

Board members during a roll-call vote passed a resolution against local representation on the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District Board of Education requested by Highland and Clermont counties.

The Great Oaks Board of Education has by resolution requested the Ohio Board of Education to make the change to local board representation from county board representation.

Miami Trace High School Principal Curtis E. Fleischer presented the new student handbook for the upcoming school year. There were no major changes and board members gave their approval.

Yambor announced all school buses passed the state inspection but due to lack of interest in the auction of the four outdated buses, an attempt will be made to sell them on an individual basis.

Board member Marion Waddle sought the board's approval to allow the Staunton United Methodist Church to splice into the Staunton Elementary School drainage system. The board approved.

Yambor announced plans for the new Miami Trace athletic building were approved by the state and due to the fact the new facility is within 30 feet of the school building, a fire wall will have to be erected.

deposits during the two-year period will be $3,942,960 and the probable maximum amount to be deposited at any time during the period will be $325,000.

In other matters, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen, 301 E. Elm St., attended the meeting to protest statements made at Council's last regular meeting by Council members Mrs. Bertha McCullough, Joseph O'Brien and city street department superintendent Bill Duncan.

The statements were made during a report over a drainage problem at the Allen residence. The two Council members had suggested the installation of a catch basin on Sycamore Street to alleviate the problem, while Allen had requested the city grade an alley behind his home.

Jet crash kills 125

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A Czechoslovak jetliner carrying 128 persons crashed into a sandy knoll and exploded early today while trying to land at Damascus airport. Authorities said there were only three survivors, two children and a man.

It was the worst air disaster in Syrian history.

The four-jet Ilyushin 62 was coming in for a landing after a flight from Prague when, at 1:15 a.m., it dipped below the flight path and ripped into the hillock about 12 miles south of Damascus, an official at the airport control tower said.

"When it hit it, the plane jumped up and exploded," the official continued. "The wreckage came crashing down. Those who were not killed in the explosion were killed in the fire."

Fire trucks rushed to the open plain from the airport and doused the blaze within a short time, officials reported.

Officials said there were 117 passengers and a crew of 11 aboard the plane, which was on a flight from Czechslovakia to Damascus, Baghdad and Tehran.

Rescuers at first found only two survivors, a man and a child, and the first announcement from civil aviation authorities said 126 persons were killed.

Patty Hearst look-alike being sought

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A spokesman for the FBI says the federal agency is interested in interrogating three persons for whom the Kentucky State Police issued an all-points bulletin on Tuesday.

State Police issued the bulletin after a stolen credit card was used to buy an automobile in Frankfort.

Police said the owner of the car lot said the vehicle was purchased by two men and a woman and that the woman "looked" like fugitive Patricia Hearst.

Officers said one of the two men is wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Diane Louise Klaas, 18, of Rockford, Ill., last week.

The girl was beaten to death with two rocks and a State Police detective said it was the most brutal slaying he had seen in three decades.

State Police said they had no evidence, other than the car lot owner's description, that the woman might be Miss Hearst.

And the FBI spokesman, who asked not to be identified by name, said it is routine for agents to question persons whenever someone claims to have sighted Miss Hearst.

"Every time we get a report on anybody who looks like Patricia Hearst we immediately send out agents," the FBI spokesman said. "We've already had agents in Frankfort and down here, where we got the call to begin with."

He said a jewelry store clerk in Louisville had called the FBI earlier in the day about a woman customer resembling Miss Hearst.

"At the present time, it's a look-alike, and at the present time we have no leads on where they are," the spokesman said. "We would be very interested when they are picked up."

Kissinger on mideast shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, leaving tonight to resume his Middle East shuttle diplomacy, says a Sinai settlement between Egypt and Israel would help blunt the move to suspend Israel from the United Nations.

Kissinger told a group of American Jewish leaders that such an agreement "will be very helpful, when and if it is reached, in doing away" with the Arab campaign to expel Israel from the U.N. General Assembly when it convenes next month, according to Rabbi Israel Miller of New York.

Dr. Miller, who headed the 10-member delegation that met Tuesday with Kissinger, said Kissinger also expressed the Ford administration's support for the defense needs of Israel.

"The concern of the Jewish community is that Israel would be pressured into taking stances that are not in its longterm benefit," Dr. Miller said. "We expressed the concern and we were reassured."

President Ford, assessing Kissinger's chances on his latest visit to the Middle East, said, "We feel we are reasonably close to a settlement at this time."

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, a senior Israeli politician said the United States would provide Israel about $2 billion in aid and guarantee oil supplies. The projected settlement includes Egypt's recovery of the Abu Rudeis oilfield, now the source of about half of Israel's oil.

Yitzhak Navon, a veteran member of the ruling Labor Party, said the United States will sell Israel "sophisticated and important arms," with terms to be arranged by Kissinger on this trip.

After Kissinger's last shuttle effort failed in March, the Ford administration deferred action on Israel's $2.8-billion military and economic aid request. This stalled Israel's bid for F15 jets, laser-guided bombs and 200 Lance mobile missiles.

Navon, speaking on Israeli state television, also said the proposed new interim pact between Israel and Egypt will include a mutual commitment to refrain from the threat or use of force.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ha'aretz reported that the agreement now being negotiated also calls for the United States to make a secret commitment to Israel to ensure that a buffer force remains in the Sinai even if U.N. troops were withdrawn in the next three years. The U.S. State Department and Israeli officials declined comment.

After a refueling stop in Britain, Kissinger will fly to Israel to begin his discussions. From there he will go to Egypt, with side visits planned to Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia in a 10-day trip.

I want to thank my relatives, friends and neighbors for their cards, flowers, prayers and words of encouragement during my recent stay at Riverside Methodist Hospital.

Stock prices down sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply again today in a wave of selling that dragged the Dow Jones industrial average below 800 for the first time since last spring.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, which has not closed below 800 since April 11, was down 10.79 to 797.72 at noon. Losers held a 5-1 edge on gainers in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was continuing its retreat in the face of concern over inflation and fears that resurgent upward pressures on prices would disrupt the economy's attempt to rebound from the recession.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .99 to 84 even.

Investors' confidence appeared to have been dealt a blow Tuesday when the Dow failed to hold at around the 810 level—a point which had been considered an area of underlying technical support.

The average's subsequent drop past 800 late this morning came without any signs of hestitation.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gave up .60 to 44.63.

Nixon bids for papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says that if he is given possession of his presidential tape recordings he will "follow as generous a rule as possible" in making them public.

But, he told lawyers in a deposition made public today, he reserves for himself and his family the right to decide what recordings will be made public.

"We will do it as expeditiously as possible," Nixon said.

The deposition was taken at a Coast Guard station that adjoins Nixon's home in San Clemente, Calif., on July 25. The former President answered questions for more than six hours.

Nixon said the confidentiality a president needs would be destroyed if a new law giving the government possession of his papers and tapes is allowed to stand.

"While the word secrecy ... to us in a free society is abhorrent, in terms of decision-making it is indispensable," Nixon said in the deposition.

Kennedy probe reopened

It is gatifying that a superior court judge in Los Angeles has reopened the investigation into the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Persistent unanswered questions about this crime, notably the question whether someone besides the convicted murderer Sirhan Sirhan was involved in it, argue strongly for a further look at the case.

Specifically, Judge Robert A. Wenke has ordered that new ballistics tests be made by on the gun used by Sirhan. This is of particular importance because advocates of the so-called "second gun" theory have long maintained that Sirhan must have had an accomplice.

Wenke's order comes in the wake of other events bearing on the case. Paul Schrade, a former labor leader who is one of those wounded along with Kennedy in the 1968 episode, has filed suit demanding release of a 10-volume report on investigation into the shooting; in this suit he has been joined by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. It also is significant that the American Academy of Forensic Sciences has called for re-study of the physical evidence. One can hope that the reopened investigation will at last reveal the full truth of what happened when Kennedy was felled on June 5, 1968.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . . By John P. Roche

The retreat that refreshes

CHILMARK, MASS. (KFS) — It was 21 years ago this summer that my wife and I discovered Martha's Vineyard. It was quite a drowsy spot in those days: you could simply drive to the ferry station at Wood's Hole and invariably, without reservations, get your car on the next boat. We loved it, particularly since we were welcomed by friends to membership in a family cooperative that dated back to 1919, and have thus been able each summer to renew our acquaintanceship with the same sturdy band, their children, grandchildren, and now even an occasional great-grandchild. Like ourselves in the 1950s, new families have joined; alas, the formidable matriarchs of yesteryear have joined God and doubtless give Her as much good advice as we received.

One of the nicest aspects of this permanent yet changing commune, and the one I'm convinced that has assured its survival, is its total absence of idelogy. Over the years dedicated animosities have developed, but always of a non-theoretical character. If, from time to time, when the spirits were high and the flagons low, some sharpness surfaced, the aura of civility has always restored by the next morning. Again, no formalities, no structured apologies: just the pretense that nothing worth remembering had occurred. Now and then, perhaps, some malicious gossip behind the Barn, but St. Augustine's analysis of human character is not altered by a boat ride.

Sometime in the 1960s the Vineyard was "discovered" and became the "in" vacation spot among the exhausted elites of New York, Cambridge and Washington. Various members of our outfit, on encountering friends from these spots who had bought or rented houses, have always returned with the same story: it is impossible to explain our set up to "foreigners." We have, for example, a regular meal schedule seven days a week: breakfast at 8, lunch at 1, and dinner at 7 — all announced by vigorous ringing of a large ship's bell.

This strikes some observers as positively monastic; indeed, when my wife and I are invited to a friend's place for a drink after the beach and quietly exit around 6:30, I always explain we have to be back for Vespers! But our meals are not just food inputs — they are opportunities for conversation with friends one has not seen since last August and will in all probability not again encounter till next summer.

There are probably as many definitions of a "vacation" as there are people. The two main schools of thought on the island are those interested in recharging their batteries and others who are dedicated to overcharging their livers. Never having signed the pledge, I have no intention of criticizing the latter. However, we live on different wavelengths — for me a vacation is a kind of secular retreat. I have never been a "nature boy" and most of the savages I have known were anything but noble, but I find that I am refreshed by contact with the sea and the sky.

There is an elemental power in the sea that is virtually immune to human meddling. As a child whose father spent years at sea, and later as a devoted reader of Joseph Conrad, I learned respect for the ocean, respect later empirically buttressed by riding breakers and feeling their prodigious power. Where we are located, the sea has been emorselessly eating away at the clay bluffs. When we first came, they were 25-feet high and we went down by rope; now, at the same point, the embankment is 2-feet high. A couple of hundred yards out to sea is a rock with a ring attached: century ago, the bull was tethered to this ring in a farmer's meadow! And the sound of breakers is surely the most efficient cure for insomnia ever discovered.

Often it seems as though the sea and sky are in competition. Some evenings, notably those which follow very hot days on tthe mainland, we sit in the barn door and watch the fog roll in. The first stars to vanish are on the horizon, but gradually the soft night extinguishes the others and your flashlight throws an eerie tunnel of illumination. However, when the skies are clear the view is literally sunning. Not only is there very little smog, but the metropolis of West Tisbury throws little reflection into the night sky.

The other night, for example, you could reach up and grab the Kite's tail, and other constellations were equally overpowering. On top of this, we are in the shooting star season, and in the course of three hours spotted a couple of dozen slashing down through the heavens. My wife claims that watching the sea and the stars brings out the secret mystical strain in me.

I can't testify to the truth of that, but I will admit I get a probably badly needed sense of humility from stargazing and sea-watching. A columnist, who by definition is supposed to act as an authority on everything, suddenly realizes that the light he is seeing from a distant star set out on its journey when our earth was still a lifeless, molten mass.

On Feb. 8, 1962, rioting in Paris of thousands of left-wing demonstrators against the Right Wing Secret Army Organization claimed wight lives and injured hundreds.

Mrs. Gall promotes equality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Maryann Baker Gall is determined sex equality shall prevail in Ohio.

She may be able to help, too. She's the first woman in state history to be chief counsel to the attorney general.

Mrs. Gall also heads the new Women's Law Project designed to activate legislation on about 100 recommendations proposed last month by the Ohio Equal Rights Amendment Task Force.

"We don't need to wait for the amendment to pass," said Mrs. Gall. "Under the Constitution and Supreme Court decisions, the recommendations already are mandated."

Another recommendation she backs strongly would change Ohio law holding the husband primarily responsible for support of his wife and children, and make both parties mutually responsible.

"Society is changing," she said. "More women are working and making salaries comparable with men. A court should look at the capabilities of each parent to pay.

"I know traditional-minded women will disagree, but people should be independent. That's an important principle."

Mrs. Gall has other beliefs about women. "At one time, I thought a person had to choose motherhood or a career," she said. "But, I see a lot of people doing both successfully. Maybe the house wouldn't be too clean, but the alternative is too limiting."

Running a staff of nine attorneys brings no discrimination for Mrs. Gall, the only woman among "the five guys" who comprise the attorney general's cabinet. "They even get bugged when we walk into a hearing and the opposing counsel asks me if I'm the court stenographer or the judge's secretary," she said with a happy laugh.

Accepting women as lawyers "is a learning thing," she believes.

"Sometime much of the private sector still resists," she said. "I went through college with good grades, had no trouble in law school, but when I started job interviewing I was told without exception that women attorneys were not being hired."

Mrs. Gall approves all the recommendations of the Equal Rights Task Force, but she would be surprised if they all passed even in two or three legislative sessions.

"Our hardest work is still to come — convincing people the recommendations are good," she said. "What we on the task force did only reflects society.

"The recommendations aren't intended to force people to be different than they are," she said. "They only indicate the changes that already are taking place."

In Roman numerals the letter C represents 100.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Teacher in school daze a problem for family

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for five years and have two children. Ward is 26 and I'm 25.

Ward teaches sixth grade students, and he loves his work. That's the trouble: he loves it too much. All summer, he mooned around like a lovesick calf saying how much he missed his "kids". He has two children of his own who could use a little more of his attention.

Last semester, Ward talked endlessly about one of his girl students. He would even call her on the phone to visit with her in the evenings. He says it's not exactly a "physical" attraction, but he would like to see her mature and blossom, and he would even like to have a hand in choosing her husband! Is this normal for a husband and father, Abby?

On weekends he'd get "the blues" and could hardly wait for Monday so he could get back to his "kids." And on Fridays he would get the blues again. I think it's wonderful for a man to love his work so much, but he makes me feel as though the children and I are a drag.

Do you think his feelings for his "kids" at school have reached a dangerous point? Please tell me what to do about this.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is either immature or dangerously involved (emotionally) with his work. He needs counseling to get his priorities in order. Urge him to get it, fast.

DEAR ABBY: My father makes a lot of mistakes when he talks. He says, "He don't," and, "They was."

I am only 14 and happen to believe that it is never too late for a person to learn. My father is only 34, and he was born in this country.

Sometimes I correct him in front of people because if I wait and tell him later, he claims he never said it, and a fight developes. My father has a hot temper and hates to be corrected, especially in front of people.

Shouldn't adults take criticism with a smile and appreciate it even if it does come from a 14-year-old kid?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: No one, regardless of his age, appreciates criticism from a 14-year-old kid in front of others. Your intentions may be good, but your timing is poor. Cool it.

DEAR ABBY: No one would think of dropping in on his minister without calling first to set up an appointment, right? So why do ministers think they have the right to drop in on their parishioners without any advanced notice just because they happen to be in the neighborhood?

One afternoon last week, I entertained some out-of-town friends and served some of my homemade apple cider. I am not a big drinker, but it was very warm that day, so I had more than I should have-and on an empty stomach, yet.

Well, no sooner had my guests departed when my minister rang the bell. I don't remember what I said, but I do recall that I babbled on and on and just couldn't quit talking. The minister couldn't get a word in edgewise. I am sure I made a perfect fool of myself.

Anyway, now I can't look him in the eye. I hope you put this in your column because I know he reads you, and I want him to know that I don't usually sip cider in the afternoons. Also, if he ever calls again, please phone first.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE WILSON

Golden anniversary observed by Wilsons

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson of Rt. 5, London, observed their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 12. The former Miss Mabel Allen and Mr. Wilson were married Aug. 12, 1925, in Leesburg.

They have five daughters, Mrs. Delbert (Margaret) Cornell and Mrs. Kenneth (Janice) Rodgers of South Solon, Mrs. Roger (Jane) Watts of South Charleston, Mrs. Gomer (Anna) Legg of London, and Mrs. Wayne (Flossie) Dillion of London; and a son, Clarence Wilson Jr. of South Charleston. They also have 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Wilson is a sister to Mrs. Straud Mathena, 1097 Spring Lake Dr., and Miss Flossie Allen of 147 Caldwell St., Chillicothe.

Anniversary observed by the Browns

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Brown of 110 E. Newberry St., were honored Sunday on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. Brown and the former Florence Yeoman were married Aug. 17, 1925, by the Rev. Charles W. Graham in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Covington, Ky.

The couple have two children: Mrs. Larry Stephenson (Linda) of Mt. Gilead, and Mrs. Alvin (Wilma) Dorn of near Washington C.H., and three grandchildren, Anne and Scott Stephenson and Jill Dorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were guests of their daughters and their families at the Golden Lamb in Lebanon, after which they spent the remainder of the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn, visiting with the family. Awaiting at the Dorn home was a lovely appointed anniversary table with a tiered cake of gold and white, topped with a gold "50". Completing the setting was an arrangement of yellow mums with a "50", gold candles and other silver appointments.

The legendary "passion flower," an intricate flower that never blooms longer than a day, is now available at florists due to a new process that lengthens the life of the bloom. The process, developed by a New Hartford, New York, firm, permits the passion flowers to be used as a fresh flower in bouquets, corsages and floral arrangements. The passion flower, brought to the Americas by early Spanish settlers, has been known since early Christian times.

The Chinese recorded the first cases of "sensitive teeth" in 2500 BC. The problem continues, affecting one of every seven Americans, recent surveys show. Modern "treatment" often consists of switching toothpastes to one containing a non-toxic strontium chloride (Sensodyne).

CHICKEN OROBIANCO

From 1973's "The Good Housekeeping Cookbook" and a favorite of the book's editor, Zoe Coulson.

¼ cup olive oil
2 garlic cloves, quartered
4 whole medium chicken breasts, halved
2 pounds hot Italian sausage links
2 cups light muscat
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
Toast slices, cut in half diagonally
2 tablespoons cornstarch

In 12-inch skillet over medium heat, in hot olive oil, cook garlic until golden; with slotted spoon, remove garlic and discard. In drippings in skillet over medium-high heat, cook chicken and sausages, a few pieces at a time, until browned on all sides. Spoon off all but 2 tablespoons drippings. Return chicken and sausage to skillet. Stir in wine, mushrooms and salt; heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover skillet and simmer 30 minutes or until chicken is fork-tender, basting occasionally with liquid in skillet. On warm platter, arrange toast; with tongs, place chicken and sausage on toast; keep warm. In cup, blend cornstarch and ¼ cup water until smooth; gradually stir into hot liquid and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened. Spoon some of sauce over chicken. Pass remaining sauce separately. Makes 8 servings.

Kelleys attend food convention

Mr. and Mrs. B.E. Kelley recently attended the two-day 20th annual convention of the Natural Food Association of Ohio, held in the huge Malabar High School building in Mansfield, where they were given honors in recognition for their many years of activity in the state and national associations and Columbus chapter, of which they are charter members.

A banquet Saturday night, attended by several hundred members, and state and national officers was featured with all natural food. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley were seated at the speaker's table, and Mrs. Kelley gave the opening pray.

Dr. Joe D. Nichols, M.D., national president and Tom Lavin, national secretary, both of Atlanta, Tex., where National headquarters and demonstration farms are located, were among the outstanding speakers, with enjoyable entertainment by Sect., Lavin.

Other speakers of national note were Dr. Charles Walters on Eco-Agriculture and its vast importance in farming, and Dr. John Nash Ott, Sec. D., Director of the Environmental Health and Light Institute in Sarasota, Fla.

Farmer Francis Winkowitsch of Iowa, who followed the orthodox methods of farming until crops started failing and his livestock sickened and die due to using one type of chemical fertilizer, told he started using nature and natural methods in farming, and for years has drawn thousands of interested farmers to his farm. "IF the life is not in the soil, it can not be in anything grown in the soil," he declared. He said soil is being ruined by chemicals applied year after year, and his cost of proper fertilization on his farm, with its notable crop production (185 bushels of corn to the acre) costs him about $5.00 per acre on his Iowa farms. Multitudes of angle or earth worms provide most of the soil fertilizer by their casting, he explained.

DO apply fragrance to pulse points — wrists, crook of elbow, throat, behind ears, temples and behind knees. That the heat of your body strengthens the scent may be an old wives' tale, but it's definitely sexy to discover a bit of hidden fragrance at these zones.

DO take advantage of the fleeting scent of summer flowers. Dry your favorites and make a potpourri that you can keep in the bath or on your dressing table. It's the touch of summer you'll need next January.

DON'T rely on your clothes to make you smell great. Spraying clothing is a super way to reinforce scent, but it doesn't substitute for letting the scent combine with your skin's natural oils.

DO surround yourself with a soft mist of fragrance by scenting lingerie. Glamour suggests putting a few drops of cologne or perfume into the rinse water when you wash your underthings.

DON'T lose the pleasure of fragrance just because your nose has gotten "immune" to a particular scent. Try a new one. It can be fun to experiment with something exactly the opposite of what you've been wearing. It's also a way of expanding your sensual experience.

Miss Pierce, Mr. Keller exchange marriage vows

Miss Georgeanna Pierce became the bride of Paul P. Keller in the Hickory Lane Church of Christ. The Rev. Keith Wooley performed the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce of 822 Leesburg Ave., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Keller of Bloomingburg - New Holland Rd.

Arrangements of gladioli and carnations in blue and white and lavender adorned the altar. Mrs. Wooley, organist, presented pre-nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white double knit long gown with an overlay of lace. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Deborah A. Bainer was brides matron for her sister. She wore a long lavender knit dress.

Ed Orihood served as best man. Rusty Bainter seated the wedding guests.

Mrs. Pierce chose a long pink and white knit dress for her daughter's wedding, and the groom's mother wore an apple green double knit and chiffon dress.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Hostesses were Mrs. Hilda Kinzer and Mrs. Deborah Bainter.

The couple is now residing on Jamison Rd. The new Mrs. Keller, a graduate of Washington Senior High School in 1972, is employed by Steele Data Processing. Her husband is employed by Versa Corporation.

Natural gas pinch could hurt severely

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

A 60 per cent curtailment in natural gas coupled with a severe winter could create widespread plant shutdowns and resulting unemployment in Ohio.

An Associated Press survey of Ohio industry showed that large industry is geared to use alternate sources of fuel. Most will go to fuel oil, which is not only more expensive but also in short supply.

"Someone is going to get hurt, and I'm afraid it's the people," said Harry E. Uehlein of Heekin Can Co. in Cincinnati. "I really don't know how it is going to work out. I'm concerned about people who may lose their jobs."

John Has, manufacturing manager at Heekin, said the firm might stop producing beer and beverage cans which have a low profit margin. He said 333 employes are involved in the process.

In the other end of the state, Cleveland City Forge Co. said it will close its plant at Wellington, putting 40 employes out of work.

"We can't go through another winter like the one last year," said Manager Della Serra. The plant will be vacated in midSeptember, he said.

Ironically, 1974 was a mild winter. Cleveland City Forge had a 55 per cent curtailment of gas. Although 60 per cent industrial curtailment is the figure most commonly used in discussing the coming winter, some experts said it might be 70.

Large Ohio industries, for the most part, have geared for the shortage. The Akron rubber industry, for example, will use coal and General Motors Corp. has drilled its own gas well near its large Lordstown plant.

Republic Steel in Cleveland, which used more than $16 million worth of natural gas in 1973, cut the figure to $6 million last year and hopes to use less this winter. The saving is going to the more expensive fuel oil.

"We sure will be hurt," said Milton Schloss of Kahn's Meat Packing Co. in Cincinnati. "In some processes, we can't use anything but gas. A heavy cutback here could lay off 150-200 people."

Boilers at the firm are being fitted for oil but Schloss said it will cost three times as much, giving competition in other parts of the country an edge in sales.

"If it happens tomorrow, we'll be out of business," said J.C. Mashburn of Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Cincinnati which uses gas to wash bottles. The company tore out its coal-burning facilities several years ago at the suggestion of Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., he said.

Mashburn said coal furnaces would not be put back in "because there is a shortage of all fuel."

At Newport, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, Interlake Steel Co. faces a 100 per cent curtailment of natural gas. It has reserve fuel of 260,000 gallons of propane and a million gallons of oil, which spokesman Sid Galloway said would last one month.

Rodney Chapman, plant engineer at Buckeye Steel Castings in Columbus, said his plant, which employes 1,800, was in the process of switching to propane and oil facilities.

"We haven't had trouble getting it in the past but we've never used as much," he said. "I don't know how we will do this winter."

Ohio energy chief Robert S. Ryan and James Duerk, director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development, have warned the gas shortage could cause a major setback in the state's economy.

Ryan said 1.6 million mandays were lost last winter when the curtailment was not so great and the weather mild. Severe weather, he said, could bring about larger curtailments.

Duerk said the curtailment could stop what improvements the state has made in employment. The Ohio unemployment rate for June was 9.1 per cent.

DP&L wins gas rate increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has agreed to a rate increase of 67 cents per 100 cubic feet of natural gas for customers of Dayton Power & Light Co.

The PUCO said the increase was needed because of natural gas curtailment restrictions handed down by the Federal Power Commission.

Commissioners have not determined the effect of the new rates on bills of individual customers.

The state regulatory agency said DP&L had another $4.8 million coming to realize the revenue level authorized Feb. 20, but cut because of the decrease in available gas.

After receiving interim approval in February for a 5.58 per cent hike, DP&L submitted evidence April 17 that FPC curtaiilments would not allow it to sell enough gas to generate authorized gross annual revenues of $83.59 million.

"Once again, chaotic curtailment policies of Congress and Washington bureaucracies have placed the cost burden squarely on the shoulders of the consumer," PUCO Chairman C. Luther Heckman said.

Many firms ignore signals of trouble

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many small-and medium-size business men prefer to slide down the chute to bankruptcy with their eyes closed and their arms folded rather than recognize the warning signals.

That is the observation of some accountants and others who are called in during the terminal days of once-healthy concerns.

"You'd be surprised how many either will turn their backs on realities or minimize the warning signals when they occur," states an executive of Coopers & Lybrand, the big accounting firm.

Maintaining that "there has never been such a period of uncertainty in predicting the future," the firm is preparing to publish for its clients an advisory booklet on sound planning and cash control techniques.

One tip: Read those sales reports carefully. Salesmen often fear to report dropping orders lest it reflects on their performance, the accountants say. A change in the order "mix" also can foretell dangers.

"A shift in sales mix toward less profitable products is a development that frequently occurs hand in hand with a decrease in sales volume," the booklet will say, making the onset of trouble doubly deadly and swift.

Some other signals of trouble:

—Your customers, who themselves might be pressed, request delays in shipment of orders already placed, thus preventing you from converting products into cash. And the goods might have to be stored at your expense.

—Your customers reject discounts for early payment and ask for longer periods in which to settle. This increases the financing cost to you and adds to the risk of not being able to collect at all, at least in full.

—The quality of your company's work is slipping. Idle time is increasing. Hirings act contrary to management's plans, especially in the costly areas of hiring and purchasing.

In fighting back, the accounting firm says, the businessman must focus on mobilizing cash, instituting cash controls, improving revenue and using his credit more wisely.

Unproductive assets should be put to work. Funds should be used more intensively. "You should consider using bank wires or telephone transfer checks which can move funds overnight from branch office to head office," they advise.

Bewteen 1880 and 1920, two million Jews came to America from eastern Europe, refugees from Czarist Russia, Rumania and Hungary.

Ford pleased by journey

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford says his two-day swing through the Midwest was "productive, constructive and worthwhile" and he plans more public question-and-answer sessions to learn the views of the American people.

Ford returned to this mountain resort Tuesday night after 10 official and political appearances in Colorado, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois and told reporters, "I'm ready to go again tomorrow."

The President will play golf and tennis here four more days before starting back to Washington on Sunday, stopping off at Libby Dam in Montana and in Chicago and Milwaukee.

He planned to phone Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today to discuss final details before Kissinger leaves tonight on another round of Middle East diplomacy. Ford said Tuesday: "We feel reasonably close to a settlement."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was delighted with a question-and-answer session Tuesday in Peoria, Ill., where he appeared before a regional White House conference on domestic issues.

After a brief address, the President fielded questions from the audience of 750 for about 25 minutes — covering the economy, energy, civil rights and other matters.

"The President thought the questioning went well," Nessen said. "He thought the questions reflected the concerns of the people in that area and he wants to continue this format in the future."

The development prompted one White House aide to quip: "if it plays in Peoria ...," adopting a slogan made famous in the administration of President Richard M. Nixon.

Nab fugitive in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — FBI agents here have arrested Joseph Milton Hill, who is accused of kidnaping and robbery in connection with a Washington, D.C. incident last Jan. 28.

An FBI spokesman said after the arrest Tuesday that Hill and his brother, Alphonzo Milton Hill, each was charged with kidnaping while armed, armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and carrying a deadly weapon.

Both are scheduled to be tried in D.C. Superior Court. The brothers are accused of forcing two men into a car in downtown Washington in the early morning hours of Jan. 28. They were arrested by D.C. police who stopped the car a short time later.

The FBI spokesman said the brothers fled after being released on bond and the U.S. attorney's office issued a warrant for their arrest for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The FBI then entered the case.

Woman takes over operation of San Diego county jail

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Next month, a woman will begin running the troubled San Diego County jail.

Elizabeth Clark, 50, was appointed Tuesday to take over the jail under the county's new corrections department.

Sheriff John Duffy, now in charge of the jail, has vowed a court fight to resist the takeover.

Mrs. Clark, the first woman in California to be named head of a county jail, is currently juvenile services director in the probation department, where she has worked for 23 years.

She says she has no "grandiose plans" for the jail but that she doesn't plan to stand pat, either — "There should be change within a couple of months."

The jail has been under heavy criticism in recent years. Built for 700 inmates, it now holds about 1,400.

A grand jury is now investigating charges of brutality against inmates by sheriff's deputies, and earlier this year a civilian guard was convicted of smuggling in narcotics for inmates.

Mrs. Clark said she plans to take a "humanistic" approach to the jail.

"We are looking at a fairly old facility that is severely overcrowded," she said. "The facilities for women are not adequate. The facilities for recreation and exercise are not adequate."

She says one of her goals will be to shift more inmates into honor programs and "halfway houses," to get them out of the jail cells and into meaningful activity.

County supervisors are currently locked in a battle over the jail. By a 3-2 vote, they created the corrections department and renamed the jail the Adult Detention Center, taking it from under Duffy's jurisdiction.

TV Viewing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Eddie Egan was a policeman, he spent a good deal of his time trying to look like something else.

Now he isn't a policeman, but he is spending a lot of time acting like one.

Egan, the former New York City detective whom Gene Hackman portrayed in "The French Connection," is costarring in a new NBC-TV cop series, "Joe Forrester."

It is another in a string of police roles he has played in films and television since winding up 20 years on the force in December 1971.

Besides "The French Connection" and "Badge 373," about his own career, Egan has appeared in "Mannix," "Police Woman," "Metro Man" and "Night of Terror."

As an undercover agent he adopted identities to hide the fact that he was a policeman. He took to role-playing in his social life, too, so that he would not put off people who might get uptight if they knew an officer was in their midst.

Now he is playing the part of a uniformed cop, and it sometimes makes him feel like he never left the police force.

"I come in at 8 a.m. every day, put on my uniform and work until 4 or so, take it off and go home," Egan reflected one day during a break in filming at Columbia Pictures.

"I live by the rules and regulations of the department: I won't smoke or drink on location because I figure someone's going to see me and write a letter saying, 'What kind of policemen do we have working for us?'

"So here I thought I was retiring, and I'm still doing it."

And loving it, no doubt. Egan is all policeman no matter what he's doing. He refers to his "Joe Forrester" scripts as "cases."

Egan returned to Hollywood a few months ago after two years in Florida, where he worked as a private detective and also wrote four movie scripts based on his police experiences.

Policeman, actor — they blend together in Eddie Egan.

One night a couple of week ago, during the filming of a "Joe Forrester" episode in downtown Los Angeles, Egan decided to pass some time looking at magazines in a liquor store.

He was standing there in full uniform when he heard a commotion and looked up to see a man hitting the store clerk with a beer bottle.

Always the cop, Egan sprang into action and wrestled the assailant into submission. Then he turned him over for arrest to a real policeman who was directing traffic for the TV production company.

Says Egan: "I guess the police department is still in my blood."

Jaycee chapter at state hospital

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A new Jaycee chapter charter has been granted for Lima State Hospital. It was approved by the Ohio Jaycees board of directors in a meeting over the weekend at Kent.

Cincy hosted first state fair

By The Associated Press

Tickets sold for 20 cents with a night in a Cincinnati hotel from $1 to $1.50, except for the Burnet House, which cost $2.

That was Ohio's first state fair 125 years ago in early October at Camp Washington, two miles from the center of Cincinnati.

It was the start of yearly junkets by thousands of Ohioans to the state fair, continuing with this year's exposition beginning Thursday.

The infant state Board of Agriculture intended that the first fair would promote sound agricultural practices among Ohio farmers.

Each exhibitor was charged a $1 entry fee, which entitled him to a badge and free admission during the three-day event. Other fairgoers could also buy badges for the same price, admitting the holders and their families or a gentlemen and two ladies. Single admission tickets were 20 cents.

The first fair, as researched by Nancy Essex of the Ohio Historical Society, was held on the Hamilton turnpike and Miami canal. Along with the agricultural exposition, the American Pomological Congress, the Ohio Mechanics' Institute and Cincinnati Horticulture Society also met.

To get to the exposition, a fairgoer could take the omnibus from central Cincinnati areas or the packet boats that left Main Street every half hour from the canal bridge.

From outside Cincinnati, easiest transportation was railroad. The lines agreed to run extra trains on the first five days of the month at half fare.

Extra trains left from Springfield, Xenia and Columbus. Half-fare trains also ran from Sandusky and Bellefontaine. The railroads transported exhibits free.

Exhibitors brought all types of livestock sheep, cattle and horses.

Categories in which prizes were awarded varied. Classes were set up for Ohio products, foreign (out-of-state) products and a combination of both.

Receipts totaled $11,000 for the first fair, including exhibitor's fees and receipts from sales of lumber and property after the fair. Expenditures equaled $12,500 with the $1,500 to be made up by the 1850 Fair Board.

A publication of the time wrote after the fair's closing:

"The spacious enclosure, with its grassy slopes and inviting shade trees its numerous tent and booths with waving flags and streamers; the throngs of cheerful spectators; the countless carriages, omnibuses and canal boats, all moving and swarming with people; the prancing horses, and lines of stately cattle, the whirl and clatter of machinery and the sound of martial music all combine to produce an effect on the minds of spectators not easily forgotten by such as never before attended an exhibition of the kind."

Set admission fee at Glen Helen

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Antioch College in mid-September will begin charging admission on holidays and weekends to Glen Helen, the 1,000-acre nature preserve bordering the campus.

The glen director, Ralph Ramey, said the charges will probably be $1 for persons over 18 and 50 cents for children. He said a 50-cent parking fee now being charged will be dropped.

Students, faculty and staff and those holding membership in the Glen Helen Association will not be charged, Ramey said.

Independent business federation topic at Rotary Club's meeting

The functions of the National Federation of Independent Businessmen were explained to members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Joseph Metcalf, a district manager for the National Federation of Independent Businessmen, said the organization has a total of 430,000 members across the nation.

The federation was founded in 1942 when the nation was operating under a controlled economy because of World War II.

According to Metcalf, the federation is basically "a voice for the independent businessman."

Metcalf said through a questionnaire mailed to members monthly businessmen receive an opportunity to express their opinions on issues which could ultimately affect them.

Both sides of pending issues are presented in the monthly questionnaires and the small businessmen express their opinions by voting. The results are then tabulated by the federation and action is initiated.

The federation sponsored proposals to reduce excess paperwork for businesses, pushed for stronger anti-trust legislation in an effort to protect the smaller business firms and protested against post offices selling postal-related items such as scales and stamp holders following a considerable outcry from federation members.

Metcalf called the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) "a prime example of overzealous bureaucracy." He said one small firm was fined under the act for not providing hangers in a restroom area for employes to hang their coats.

"The federation is dedicated to the free enterprise system to protect the interests of small businesses," Metcalf said.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams. The program was arranged by John Rhoad.

During the meeting, Paul Crosby presented a $100 check to be used in the Rotary International foundation program in memory of the late Lowell M. (Pete) Hayes. The memorial gift was accepted by George Finley, chairman of the Washington C. H. club's foundation committee.

All Rotary clubs contribute to the foundation which establishes a massive scholarship program. Graduate students are sent abroad to study with expenses being defrayed through the foundation.

Also during the meeting, Hugh Wilson, 719 Fairway Drive, was accepted as a new member. He was sponsored by Richard Whiteside.

Visiting Rotarians were Tom Elsea, Circleville, Everett Royer, London, and Robert McNeely, Mount Sterling. Guests were Dean Rice with Don Bailey, John Marcum with John Lachat, Dr. James McCracken with Paul Crosby and Dave McMillan with Lee Kraus.

New real estate mortgages total $2 million in July

New real estate mortgages recorded in Fayette County during July totaled $2,069,797.66, according to the monthly report prepared by Mrs. Lorie M. Armbrust, Fayette County recorder.

The new mortgage figure includes $939,832.66 on 60 lots and other platted properties; $700,965 on 1,034.53 acres of farm real estate in 23 transactions and $429,000 on two commercial mortgages.

Ninety-eight deeds were recorded in July, 33 of them changing title to 2,334.27 acres of farm property. There were eight certificates of transfer for lots and 12 for rural properties.

OTHER instruments recorded in July were:

One affidavit for transfer, two affidavits in aid of title, four right of ways and easements, four cemetery deeds, two supplemental mortgage indentures, two open-end mortgages, one recorded assumption of mortgage, one land contract, three land contract releases, 53 mortgage releases for lots, 19 mortgage releases for farm real estate, seven recorded partial mortgage releases, three mortgage assignments, one lease, two recorded lease assignments, one lease release, two power of attorney, three mechanic's liens, two recorded mechanic's lien releases, three soldier's discharges and 106 financing statements.

On registered land there were one certificate of title, two partial cancellations of titles (by court entry), one mortgage, one partial mortgage release and one mortgage release.

Phone book delivery begins

GREENFIELD — Delivery of new telephone directories is under way in Greenfield and Leesburg, the General Telephone Co., of Ohio has announced.

Tom R. O'Neil, Wilmington customer service manager, said a specially-commissioned painting of the first official American flag appears on the front cover of the directories in observance of the nation's bicentennial. The only words on the cover are "1776-1976 The 200th Birthday of our Country."

Customers are reminded to check out the introductory pages. They have been redesigned for simplicity and provide information such as emergency numbers, toll-free calling points and instructions for calling another number of a party line.

Instructions on page 4 explain procedures for direct-distance dialing.

"Some of our customers have problems with direct-dialed calls," O'Neil said, "because they fail to answer the operator who asks for their number."

Calls cannot be completed without this information which is used for billing purposes.

One directory is being sent to each household in an effort to reduce printing and paper costs. In the past, one book was allotted for each telephone. Business customers will experience no change.

O'Neil predicted that 680 fewer directories will go to homes in the area this year. This represents a savings of nearly 140 pounds of paper.

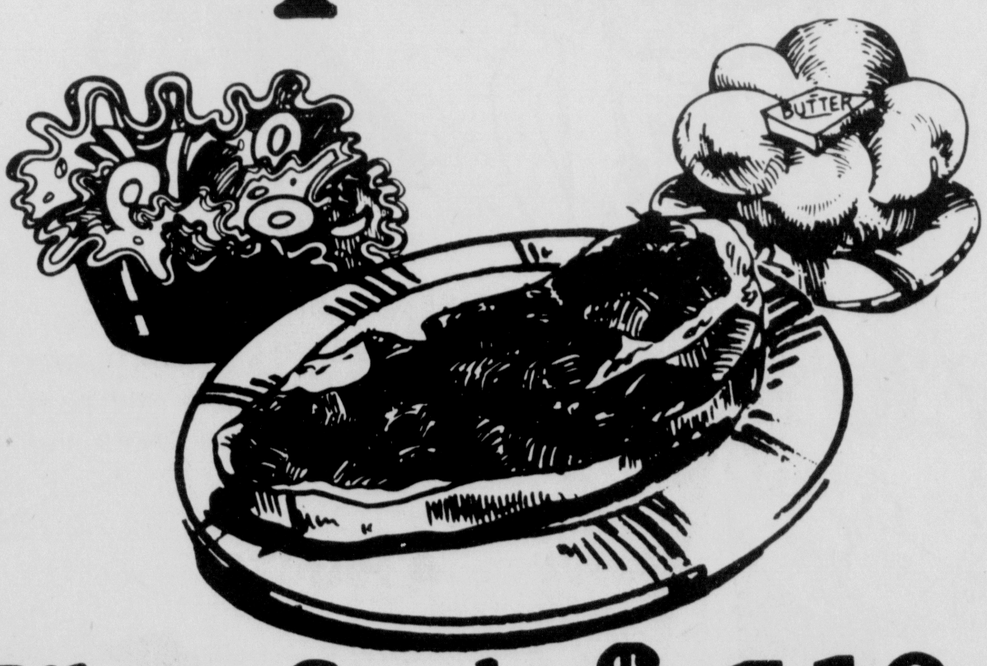

"Taken alone, the savings may be insignificant," he said, "but when figured on a statewide basis, General Telephone would save more than 54 tons of paper in one year."

General Telephone serves 734,000 telephones, including 162,400 residence extensions in 80 Ohio counties.

O'Neil reminded customers to check out familiar numbers that may not be answering. "It may be that the number has changed."

Any customer not receiving a new book by Aug. 28 should call the business office.

Greenfield woman receives jail term for disturbance

A Greenfield woman was fined and sentenced to jail in Washington C.H. Municipal Court Tuesday for her part in a disturbance in the downtown area early Tuesday.

Rita K. Fridley, 22, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail for resisting arrest. She was also fined an additional $100 on a disorderly conduct charge.

She was arrested, along with Katherine S. Simmons, 33, Greenfield, in the basement of the Emerald Inn, S. Fayette Street, when Washington C.H. police investigated loud voices coming from the bar.

Officers said Ms. Fridley became violent and attempted to hit Patrolman Mike Stritenberger with a bar stool before she was subdued and placed in the cruiser.

Ms. Simmons, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $100 and costs for her part in the incident.

Both women pleaded guilty to the charges.

Marilyn Elliott, 28, of 3407 Old Springfield Rd., was fined $100 and costs on an assault charge filed by Virginia Burkhard. Acting Judge John Case suspended $75 of the fine provided that Ms. Elliott not trespass on the property of Ms. Burkhard.

She had entered a plea of not guilty.

Donald E. Cooper, 27, of 1129 Willard St., was fined $35 and costs after pleading guilty to a check fraud complaint. The $6 check was cashed at the Stop 'n Go Store June 23.

Richard E. Kemp, Prairie Road, was found guilty of an assault complaint filed by Marvin L. Hale and was fined $75 and costs. He pleaded not guilty.

An assault charge filed against Kenneth M. Yarger, 24, of 630 W. Circle Ave., was dismissed when the prosecuting witness, Mary Yarger, failed to appear in court. She was assessed court costs.

Foreclosures Sought

Harold Hise, Fayette County treasurer, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against four property owners for non-payment of taxes. Those named in the suits and the amount of back taxes and penalties owed were Charles M. and Linda K. Little, $380.08; Harold T. and Ruth A. Leisure, $453.42; Charles and Emma Glispie, $175.34; Freda Dunlap, $159.94. The plaintiff asks that the properties on which the taxes are owed be sold in order that the judgement be paid.

SUIT DISMISSED

A suit filed by Richard Allen, 310 E. Elm St., against the Grange Mutual Casualty Co., Columbus, has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court. The suit stemmed from an auto accident on March 26, 1975 in which Allen was injured. He had charged that the insurance company had failed to honor his claims and asked, in the suit, for $5,000 in compensatory damages and $5,000,000 in punitive damages. The case was dismissed because the plaintiff failed to state grounds on which relief could be granted.

Toledo bishop raps Mrs. Ford over 'moral issues' remarks

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford has been sharpely criticized by the Roman Catholic bishop here for her remarks on "moral issues" during a recent television interview.

"Since your comments have been widely reported in the news media," Bishop John A. Donovan said in a letter to Mrs. Ford, "I feel compelled to inform the 330,000 membership of this diocese through the publication of this letter that I have taken strong exception to your erroneous and irresponsible position on these matters of crucial moral and religious importance."

Mrs. Ford was interviewed Aug. 10 on the CBS program "60 Minutes."

In his letter, the Bishop said in part: "I find for instance that your permissive if not encouraging attitude toward premarital sex fitlessly dismissed the edifying efforts of millions of Americans who, deeply committed to the proud Judaeo-Christian traditions of our country, heroically support moral values that uphold human dignity and the sacredness of sexuality. Any permissiveness which dismisses those values likewise weakens the very fiber of our society.

"The indication that your like or dislike of your daughter's choice of companion's would influence your parental reaction to a hypothetical affair reveals a tragic disgregard of moral principles."

In answer to an interviewer's question, Mrs. Ford had said she would not be surprised if her daughter Susan, 18, told her she was having a premarital affair. But she added: "I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject and I'd want to know pretty much about the young man she was having the affair with."

Mrs. Ford also said: "Our family was brought up on the fact that marriage is the greatest thing in the world."

Bomb explodes at Alioto home

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded early today at the home of Mayor Joseph L. Alioto as he attempted to mediate a pay dispute which sent most of the city's police on strike.

A sign was found on the front lawn saying, "Don't Threaten Us," but Alioto said he did not think there was any connection between the explosion and the police strike. The mayor had threatened large-scale dismissals and arrests of strike leaders if the two-day walkout continued.

The blast shattered windows and severely damaged the front door and concrete pedestals on the front porch of the Alioto home, but officials said no one was injured.

Alioto's wife, Angelina, who was in an upstairs room, "seemed stunned — dazed," said Bill Rolph, a security guard in the Presidio Terrace neighborhood where the Alioto home is located.

Alioto rushed to the house from the hotel where negotiations were being held, and strike negotiations were postponed until later today.

Bill O'Brien, Alioto's news secretary, said the hand-lettered sign found after the bomb exploded at 12:15 a.m. also carried a swastika symbol.

Alioto said, "No, I don't believe the police or the police strike had anything to do with it."

Visibly shaken, he added, "We have a lot of people fishing in troubled waters. We have a lot of sick people."

Alioto, who strolled through the seamy Tenderloin district at nightfall Tuesday, had said earlier that leaders of the strike faced arrest if they continued to ignore a court order directing a return to work.

"We are going into court and ask for a warrant of arrest or an appearance before that court," he said in a special address broadcast Tuesday night. Who would arrest the striking policemen remained an unanswered question.

Alioto caucused with local labor leaders and members of the board of supervisors late into the evening, and board president Dianne Feinstein said they were awaiting a police response to an unspecified offer.

But Gerald Crowley, head of the striking Police Officers Association, said earlier that he held out little hope that the board would come up with an acceptable offer. He said the union had no plans to meet again with the board until later today.

"All essential police services are being performed, and there is no existing present danger," the mayor assured the city's 677,000 residents. He vowed that unless the strikers began reporting for work, "we are going to begin dismissal proceedings against all of them."

The strike by an estimated 90 per cent of the 1,300 rank-and-file policemen in the 1,935-man department entered its second day without major traffic tieups or outbreaks of lawlessness. Supervisory personnel continued to man telephones and keep about half the city's 60 prowl cars on the streets.

The possibility that the bells of cable cars would be stilled and fire protection severely curtailed also faced the city. Transit workers have set a midnight Thursday strike deadline and firemen continued to take a strike vote of their own.

Nigeria being choked by new prosperity

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Correspondent

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — "This nation is being strangled by its own prosperity. It's like a newly wealthy man switching from a meager diet to a rich one. His arteries start clogging up and he is in danger of suffering heart failure."

The African diplomat was bewailing the endless frustrations and complications of life in the capital city of Black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

As he talked, a stream of cars inched its way along the road outside. In the sea lanes leading to Lagos, Nigeria's most important port, more than 280 ships, laden with commodities essential for Nigeria's existence and growth, queued for berths.

In the crowded, vibrant streets of the city, a new breed of Nigerian entrepreneur who has managed to cash in on the nation's massive oil wealth rubs shoulders with peanut vendors and impoverished inhabitants of shanty towns who are finding it daily more difficult to make ends meet as the cost of living soars.

There are constant shortages of milk, gasoline, beer and other items of daily life here despite the fact that last year Nigeria earned $8.8 billion dollars from oil.

Lagos is not entirely representative of life in the rest of the country. But it is here that the dreams, aspirations and fears of the nation crystallize. And over the past few months many residents of the capital have been predicting that something had to give.

Late last month their forecasts came true. As he attended the organization of African Unity summit in Uganda, Gen. Yakabu Gowon was ousted as Nigerian head of state. After nine years of uninterrupted power he was toppled by a handful of dissatisfied brigadiers and colonels who no longer felt he had the authority or capacity to rule.

The new military rulers, headed by 38-year-old Brig. Murtala Muhammed, charged that he had become isolated from the people and was allowing the direction of state affairs to drift to such an extent that the nation's 65-70 million people were again threatened by "bloodshed and chaos."

Nigeria is a conglomeration of some 250 often quarrelsome tribal groupings, divided by religion and culture.

The arid, windswept north is predominantly Moslem, but Christians predominate in the tropical south. Other Nigerians follow their traditional religious customs.

It was Gowon's repeatedly stated desire to weld them irrevocably into one nation. Even his critics agree that he laid the foundations.

Part of the key to his success was Nigerian oil. Fueled by international increases in oil prices, Nigerian coffers were flooded by foreign exchange. But this year falling demand for oil worldwide is expected to cut Nigerian revenues by some $2 billion.

It was the spurt in oil revenues that earlier this year allowed Gowon to award massive pay hikes to civil servants and also launch an ambitious $48 billion, five-year development program. It was designed to create an industrial revolution, boost stagnant agriculture toward self-sufficient opportunities for all Nigerians.

But the pay increases, ranging from 30 to 130 per cent, sparked a series of strikes for similar awards in the private sector, which were met under government pressure.

Yet at least 90 per cent of the nation, reliant on a hand-to-mouth existence from the land, derived little benefit.

As the minority went on a spending spree, inflation soared from 13 to more than 30 per cent.

In addition, as newspapers here have been pointing out in the past week, disillusionment with Gowon's government was further accentuated by a string of broken promises.

These included undertakings to return Nigeria to civilian rule next year, to replace or reshuffle Nigeria's governors then under fire for corruption, and to create new states to make the existing 12 more representative of local aspirations.

Most Nigerians welcomed Gowon's removal. They are biding their time, however, before embracing the new rulers.

One Nigerian summed up the situation: "We are in the position of a man sitting back with his arms folded. We are awaiting events. We very much want the best for our country. We hope the new military rulers will not let us down. We hope they will overcome the crisis of rising expectations and unfilled desires."

Time capsules for insects developed

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — An Akron scientist says controlled-release capsules similar in concept to some head cold remedies are being intensively studied as a way to protect farmers' crops from voracious insects.

Nate Cardarelli, associate professor of general technology at the University of Akron, says research was stepped up on controlled-released pesticides because of widespread concern over massive doses of such chemicals as DDT.

"Controlled release offers a heck of a lot of promise to control pests with much less environmental contamination than conventional pest-control methods," he said.

Cardarelli, a leading scientist at the field, was asked by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to write a book about the capsules.

In the book, "Controlled Release Pesticides Formulation," Cardarelli discusses such topics as antifouling materials, snail control and various plant, insect and rodent killers.

Cardarelli's main area of expertise is snail control. He said snails are responsible for many human deaths in tropical and Asiatic lands.

The snails carry miscroscopic worms which enter the human body by contact with the snails. The worms, which can destroy a person internally, also destroy the snails, he said.

Cardarelli, whose book will come out in November, is to keynote an international symposium on controlled-release pesticides at Wright State University in Dayton later this year. He coordinated a similar meeting at Akron last year.

Egypt has textile plants, chemical, steel, cement and fertilizer factories and a film industry supplying the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

Tests set on game day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio State University students will be taking final exams during the OSU-Michigan football game Nov. 22. They can blame it on the school's fuel-saving class schedule for 1975-76.

The four days of final exams are to begin on the day of the traditional rivalry game at Ann Arbor.

Under the new calendar developed last spring, the autumn quarter's 47 class days begin Sept. 16 and end Nov. 21.

Some students have complained the starting date means quitting summer jobs earlier than usual. Administrators believe students can make up lost summer earnings during the Christmas vacation, more than a month long.

Commencement is set for Nov. 26 and classes for the winter quarter start Jan. 5.

Snaps nine game streak

Cardinals trim Cincy, 2-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds have been set on their heels by Lynn McGlothen's fast balls and have at least one commiserator.

"He was pitching the inside corner, he was pitching the outside corner," McGlothen's battery mate, St. Louis Cardinals catcher Ted Simmons, said Tuesday night.

"It's kind of hard to guess where it's going to be," added Simmons, who was on the receiving end of 10 McGlothen strikeout pitches, including seven at which the Reds failed to offer in a 2-1 Cards win.

"No one was caught looking at the curve except (Merv) Rettenmund," the Cards catcher noted. "I can't see where he could have thrown any better. He's thrown as hard but not with that much control."

McGlothen, who boosted his record to 13-9 with a four-hitter, was called for his utmost in precision at the outset while halting a string of Cincinnati victories at nine.

Pete Rose opened for the Reds with a double over the third base bag and Ken Griffey beat out a bunt.

Joe Morgan rammed a high delivery to deep center field for a sacrifice fly scoring the Cincinnati run, then McGlothen slammed the door beginning with a strikeout of Johnny Bench.

"Here in St. Louis it's probably the best I've pitched," acknowledged McGlothen, a righthander who delivered 115 pitches and walked only Morgan.

"I had perfect control," he said. "I had them hitting my pitch. With these guys, I had to."

A mound duel in which McGlothen bested Gary Nolan, 11-7, was decided only a half inning after Cincinnati scored.

Bake McBride slammed a single up the middle with one out and scored to third on Willie Davis' double. Nolan had scarcely recovered from the blows when Simmons singled to score McBride and afterward Ted Sizemore snapped the tie with the Cards' fourth hit.

McGlothen hurled hitless ball after the third and was tagged hard only by Bench's long drive to left for the second out in the ninth inning.

Bill Virdon and the Pittsburgh Pirates are back in business ... but at opposite ends of the National League.

The Pirates, who had lost six in a row and 11 of their last 12 games, blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0 behind Jerry Reuss' three-hit pitching and reclaimed sole possession of first place in the NL East.

Meanwhile, Virdon, who managed the Bucs in 1972-3, made his debut as pilot of the Houston Astros — dead last in the West and the only team in baseball without at least a mathematical chance at a division title — and directed them to a 6-3 loss at the hands of the New York Mets.

The Philadelphia Phillies, who had been tied with Pittsburgh, fell one game back when the Atlanta Braves beat them 6-4 on Dave May's two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning. The St. Louis Cardinals remained 2½ out by edging the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 as Willie Davis returned from five days of self-exile with two singles, a double and a triple and Lynn McGlothen hurled a four-hitter.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and the Montreal Expos trimmed the San Diego Padres 5-0.

Al Oliver drove in two runs with a homer and double and Richie Zisk also homered as the Pirates returned from a 2-12 road trip during which they squandered a four-game lead.

Mets 6, Astros 3

Del Unser and Wayne Garrett hit solo home runs and Jerry Grote had a two-run double as the Mets spoiled the debut of Virdon, who was fired earlier this month as manager of the New York Yankees and hired Tuesday to replace Preston Gomez with Houston.

Jon Matlack, who hadn't pitched in 17 days because of an auto accident and a head cold, blanked the Astros until the ninth when he gave up a double to Enos Cabell and two-out home runs to Cesar Cedeno and Cliff Johnson.

Braves 6, Phillies 4

May was sent up to bat for Max Leon, who pitched 6 1-3 shutout innings of relief as Atlanta wiped out an early 4-0 deficit. Rookie Rob Belloir had singled before May hit his game-winning homer off Gene Garber.

Dodgers 2, Cubs 1

Lee Lacy's triple and John Hale's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning produced the winning run while Don Sutton and Mike Marshall held Chicago to two hits. Sutton was lifted for a pinch hitter after allowing only one hit in six innings.

Expos 5, Padres 0

Steve Rogers scattered 10 hits and Montreal scored three unearned runs in the first inning on two errors.

Rangers 2, Indians 1

Texas Manager Frank Luchessi went against the baseball book and lived to talk about it. That famous guide to winning baseball games warns never to put the winning run on base but Luchessi ordered hot-hitting Boog Powell to be walked intentionally.

The strategy worked when Ed Crosby flied out to end the game.

How about spending a fun-filled fall in a touch football league?

The newly created Ohio Touch Football Association has announced that a total of 18 Ohio leagues from 17 cities have received membership certificates.

The 18 leagues, and any new ones that join the Association, are eligible to field teams in the state tournament for men over 18-years-old this fall.

Leagues desiring to join the Association and compete in the tournament should contact Commissioner John Kovach, 714 E. Judson St., Youngstown. Individuals or cities wishing to create leagues can receive assistance from the association.

Tournament competition will be staged under National Touch Football Rules, with seven-man teams playing over an 80-yard field. Tourney sites will rotate every year with each member city having the opportunity to be the host.

Some of the cities already signed up for the association are Columbus, Grove City, Urbana and Xenia.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY has relayed more definite plans for former Miami Trace standouts Jay Mossbarger, Jeff Sagar and Tom Riley during the upcoming season.

Capital will run from the slot-I on offense and the coaching staff has tabbed Riley and Sagar as "fine running athletes that could fit into our offensive picture in the near future" after seeing high school game films of the two ex-Panthers.

Capital's 4-4-3 defense alignment will place Mossbarger at defensive end on the front-four line. After watching the All-Ohio selection in game films, the Capital coaches were impressed with his "aggresive hitting and tackling ability".

ANOTHER FAYETTE COUNTY former prep gridder will be on hand for the opening of Murray State University's summer workouts besides captain Jay Waddle.

Former Blue Lion Doug Willis, who was redshirted as a freshman, has a shot at a guard position for Murray State.

The 6-foot-205-pounder's brother, Dale, started three years for Murray State on the offensive line.

NERO, THE 'SUPERSTAR' pacer, who is without a doubt the best three-year-old harness horse in the country this year, has some strong ties with Fayette County.

The wonder horse's dame La Byrd Abbe out of Lana Byrd was raised by Washington C.H.'s John Sagar.

Sagar sold La Byrd Abbe in 1966 to Mrs. W.H. Wyatt of Franklin, Tennessee. The mare's first first foal was Nero.

A BENEFIT SOFTBALL tournament for the American Legion Baseball team will be held over Labor Day with all proceeds from the event going towards new uniforms and equipment for the Court House team next year.

Organizer Ron Helmick said he needs umpires to donate their time for the tourney which will be held in Eyman Park. Umpires wishing to support the Legion team can call Helmick in the evenings at 335-4369.

Entry fee for the tourney is $50 and the drawing is slated for Monday at 7 p.m. in Eyman Park.

A number of trophies will be given and interested teams should call Helmick or Chester Estep (335-1985).

TENNIS ENTHUSIASTS have a chance to compete in another tournament this summer as Greenfield plans to host an event on the new Mitchell Park Courts from Aug. 29 to September 7.

Most of the matches will be held on the weekends and participants in the Washington City Tennis tourney are invited to attend.

Entry fee is $2 for singles events and $3 for doubles play. Interested players should contact Rose Ann Brownell (513-981-4527).

Scioto to feature top trotters

Seven of the ten three-year-old trotters, who qualified for the championship of the Ohio Sires Stakes Series, will answer the call to the post Thursday night at Scioto Downs in quest of a portion of the $14,770 purse and the trophy symbolic of the sophomore trotting supremacy.

As expected the race looms as the final showdown between the classic world champion, Excellent Tad, and the piston-legged Bill Coy, both installed as co-favorites on the early line.

Excellent Tad, owned by Joe Cowden, Ed Crider, and Chuck Bewley of Medina, and reined by George Mueller. has won in 2:03 twice this year. Once at Scioto Downs in his division in the Scarlet and Gray Cup Series, and once at The Meadows in his division of the Currier & Ives stake. Last year, the bold going son of Lincoln Land Tad, stepped off a handsome mile in 2:06 at Scioto Downs to claim the world record for two-year-old trotting geldings over a five-eights mile track.

Bill Coy, owned by Barton Holl of Logan and driven by son-in-law Dick Brandt, won his division of the Scarlet and Gray Cup in 2:04.2 after winning a race at The Meadows in 2:03.2.

Bright spots begin to show in county grid practices

The two Fayette County grid coaches report that their respective teams are shaping up a little better after contact drills were started Monday.

Washington Blue Lion coach Maurice Pfeifer said that several of his players are beginning to show as "bright spots" to the coaching staff, even though the Lions turned in a disappointing early morning practice Tuesday in the hitting department.

Pfeifer said the afternoon practice went better and praised the blocking of guards Brian Haines and Greg Huysman along with tackles Dan Dean and Kevin Pfeifer.

The Blue Lions have been devoting about twenty minutes each session to the kicking game and Randy Gardner has been tabbed with the punting chores. Pfeifer reports that the punt receiving team, a sore spot last year for the Lions, has been coming along fine.

The passing game has been getting considerable attention in recent days as four quarterbacks are getting a good look over. Senior Greg Marti seems to have the inside tract to the signal-calling job with senior Tom Anderson and juniors Mark Heiny and Kevin Bonecutter also working out in the position.

Coach Pfeifer also reports that he has a "bevy" of fine receivers this season.

No injuries have been reported since the contact drills began Monday, but three gridders have missed some practice time with ankle sprains.

The Blue Lion squad increased to 50 gridders with the addition of Chuck Marshall, a senior split-end from Wilmington, and Martin Putney, a 6'1", 195-pound tackle from Georgia. The two newcomers have yet to suit up for the contact drills, because of the four-day acclimation policy.

The Washington C.H. gridders held their annual picnic Monday night at Washington Park with nearly 250 persons attending.

Panther coach Fred Zechman ran his team through a scrimmage Monday morning to open the first day of contact drills. The Trace coaching staff viewed the video tape of the scrimmage and used the Monday afternoon practice to correct mistakes.

Zechman said he was pleased with Tuesday's contact drills singling out the defensive work of Greg Cobb, Steve Wilson and Bruce Ervin while praising the offensive blocking of Jack James and Sam Grooms.

The afternoon practice was devoted to the offense as the Panthers worked on their timing and defense reading. Sophomores Art Schlichter and Shane Riley are still considered the prime quarterback candidates.

The Panther coaching staff also singled out the running of halfbacks Ervin and Bill Warnock and were exceptionally pleased with the running and blocking of fullback Rex Coe.

Both teams are gearing towards the first interscholastic scrimmage slated for Saturday.

Kern will hold free grid clinic

Former Ohio State grid star Rex Kerns will be on hand for a free football clinic in the Washington Middle School gymnasium Sunday at 3 p.m.

The clinic is sponsored by the Pony Football Association and is geared to coaches, parents and Pony League age football players.

Kern, who was an all-American at Ohio State and just recently retired from pro football, will explain equipment and techniques that are deemed suitable for young gridders. There will also be an autograph session and the public is invited to the clinic.

Fifth and sixth graders wishing to play Pony League Football this season can sign up for the league and weigh in for the first time Sunday. The remaining two weigh-in dates are slated for September 2 and 3.

Water a must for summer athletes

With prep grid squads and marching bands preparing for the opening of the football season by practicing daily in the intense late summer heat and humidity, it is a good time to review ways to avoid heat illnesses.

Dr. Robert Murphy, who is one of the nation's leading medical authorities on the prevention and treatment of heat illness and who also serves as head physician for the Ohio State football team, said the replacement of fluids is a must for summer athletes.

"It was once the rule rather than the exception that drinking water be withheld during workouts in extremely hot or humid weather," reported Dr. Miller, "but thanks to an aggressive educational program over the past five years on the part of the Ohio State Medical Association and the Ohio High School Athletic Association most athletic coaches and band supervisors are taking proper precautions for their young charges."

Although most high school coaches are well aware of the "give them water" advice, some concern rests with independent coaches in such sports as Pony League Football here in Washington C. H.

For those coaches who still adhere to banning water from the practice or game field, Dr. Murphy said an adequate supply of drinking water would be made available on the practice field.

Murphy suggested that if no water supply is made available young athletes should be encouraged to bring a thermos of ice water to each practice session.

"Most colleges, high schools, junior high schools and little leagues are now providing unlimited fluid replacement, but a few still may be following the absolute regimen that most of their coaches had learned," Murphy said. "Again, the most important replacement item is water. Salt and other substances are very secondary," he added.

Early conditioning should be conducted in shorts and should start at about 30 minutes a day and gradually increase to a two-hour practice session. Such an acclimitzation program is required by high schools, but coaches who are not bound to this rule are urged to adopt it.

Coaches should know the environmental conditions such as temperature and humidity at the start of each practice. If the humidity exceeds 90 per cent practice should be cancelled.

Identify the most susceptible individuals to heat illnesses. They are the stockier athletes with a large muscle mass or an overweight condition.

"Again," Dr. Murphy repeated, "don't hesitate to fill the thermos with ice water for use at the practice field."

Sea Lion Thrives On Special Diet

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dissolved herring, whipped cream, lard and vitamins, whipped in a blender and served up in a baby bottle, helped Hulk reach his first birthday.

Now Hulk gobbles whole herrings through strong, sharp teeth and spends his time learning how to be a sea lion, says Brad Andrews, assistant curator of mammals at the Marineland aquatic zoo on the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

"He eats herring, smelts, squid, he'll grab anything," says Andrews. Like most members of his barking, seal-like breed, Hulk is not a bit fussy about his diet.

Hulk was his mother's first pup and the kid was about two weeks premature, the animal keeper explained in a recent interview.

"The mother was weak — many sea lions have trouble with their first pup — and she didn't pay much attention to the pup after he didn't respond to her calls."

So employes checked with researchers around the country and evolved the fishy, frothy, sweet formula that sustained the little mammal for his first year of life.

By his first birthday, June 7, Hulk had a long way to go before reaching full size of 600 or 700 pounds. But he tipped the scales at a respectable 12 pounds, his brown coat sleek and his body healthy, Andrews said.

To give the premature pup the care he needed, Andrews or one of his assistants took Hulk home each night.

"He basically stayed in the bathtub, which was lined with plenty of paper. Sea lions," Andrews says, "cannot be housebroken."

Now Hulk lives with another sea lion his own age to learn how to get along with his own species.

Within a year, Andrews says, Marineland officials will decide if Hulk is docile and intelligent enough to be trained as a show animal.

Sea lions can be taught to perform tricks — balancing balls, rolling over or covering their eyes.

Already Hulk is learning a variety of activities with his new friend.

The two "play" together a lot. They play in the water, they scare each other, they play with their food, says Andrews.

"He doesn't particularly care for me. He just sort of looks at me, and opens his mouth like he's going to go after me. But he's got his friends, some of the other pups and some of his feeders," Andrews said.

Sea lions, which live around California's Channel Islands, would never attack a human.

"They'll only defend themselves. They have pretty sharp teeth, though, and even a young pup can inflict a pretty good wound if cornered or threatened," Andrews says.

Professional liability snag rises

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Two lawyers who are part-time public officials in Napoleon have been unable to get malpractice insurance to cover them in their public jobs.

Sources within the insurance industry said the earlier malpractice problems of doctors may be a sign of the times for all professional people, especially those who mix public and private practice.

Marlow Witt, Napoleon's law director, and Ronald P. Lankenau, a municipal judge, said they haven't been able to find insurance to cover them in their city jobs.

When they renewed their professional liability policies, they discovered they weren't covered from lawsuits lodged against them as public officials.

Both are continuing their public duties, but they said they thought they were doing so at a risk.

An insurance industry spokesman said problem is the result of an increasing number of lawsuits against professionals of all sorts, especially those who mix public and private affairs.

"I'm not sure you could call it a trend," said Douglas Avery, vice president of the Ohio Independent Insurance Agents Association in Columbus, "but it is obvious that professional liability is going to be an increasingly difficult line to insure."

Few lawyers, he said, pay into insurance pools to offset the high cost of lawsuits and thus are among the more susceptible to higher insurance costs and a scarcity of malpractice insurance.

Witt, Napoleon's law director for 13 years, asked City Council to assume the risk for himself, Lankenau and other municipal court employes who might be named in a lawsuit. Council took the request under advisement.

Clerk-Treasurer Rupert Schweinhagen said a search for new coverage is underway. He said the firm which insures city police refuses to add other city officials to the policy.

Both Witt and Lankenau said the city must either obtain the coverage or agree to pay legal fees and judgments in case they are sued. "Under these new civil rights laws, you can sue for anything," Witt said.

Witt, however, said he has been sued once in his years as law director. It was a civil rights suit that he said was quickly dismissed. He said he also recalled one medical malpractice suit being filed here in 16 years.

Lankenau took objection to one insurance agent's view that the lawyers have themselves to blame because of their role in the growing number of lawsuits.

"It's often blamed on lawyers, but lawyers don't grant verdicts," he said. "Laymen grant verdicts."

Byron White, one-time football star and later deputy attorney general, was named an associated justice of the Supreme Court by President John Kennedy on March 30, 1962, to take the place of retiring Justice Evans Whittaker of Missouri.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

Opening lead - ace of spades.

This deal occurred in the match between Israel and Denmark during the 1972 World Bridge Olympiad. It demonstrates two important points. One is that there is such a thing as a player being overly cautious in the bidding, and the other is that it is better to take a small loss by intentionally overbidding, than to pass and possibly take a large loss.

When Schwartz and Stampf held the North-South cards for Israel at the first table, they got to four hearts on the bidding shown and made ten tricks for a score of 420 points.

West's pass of one heart is difficult to understand. Most players would either double one heart or overcall with two diamonds, and they assuredly would not resolve the choice by taking no action at all. The pass by West was much too timid, and eventually proved very expensive.

When Denmark held the North-South cards at the second table, the bidding was much more spirited. It went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dble	3 ♣	4 ♠
5 ♣	5 ♦	Pass	Pass
5 ♥	5 ♠	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dble

Here both sides bid their cards forcibly and well, the Danish North finally winding up at six clubs doubled and going down two — 300 points — for a team loss of 720 points.

North judged that his vulnerable opponents could make five spades, worth 650 points, and he bid six clubs knowing that he could not make that contract but that the sacrifice was worth while. His only losers were a spade, a heart and a diamond.

Interference with Blood Supply

Almost every night I am awakened from a deep sleep with a feeling of numbness and a tingling of the arms. Then I can't get back to sleep. In the morning I'm exhausted. What can I do about it?

Mr. D.L., Iowa

Dear Mr. L.

Such sensations almost always indicate that there is some temporary interference with the proper blood supply.

The fact that it occurs during the night indicates that your sleeping position may be a factor.

Pressure from the weight of the body acts almost like a tourniquet and interferes with proper circulation.

When you are awake and the pressure of your position is removed, the numbness probably disappears as the blood once more surges through your arm.

Sometimes an anatomical variation of a blood vessel may be responsible. Tobacco, too, may be a cause.

The likelihood is that there is no great reason for concern about this problem other than its affecting your sleep.

A study of your circulatory system can easily be accomplished and will alleviate your anxiety.

Learning to sleep in another position may relieve you of this discomfort.

* * *

I can't get diet pills any more. Is there any other way to curb the appetite?

Miss M.O'N., Pa.

Dear Miss O'N.:

And a good thing, too! The abuse and dependence on diet pills was becoming a national calamity. Government regulations rightfully were imposed on these drugs. Their use is now limited to medical problems and must be given under the direction of a doctor for those purposes only.

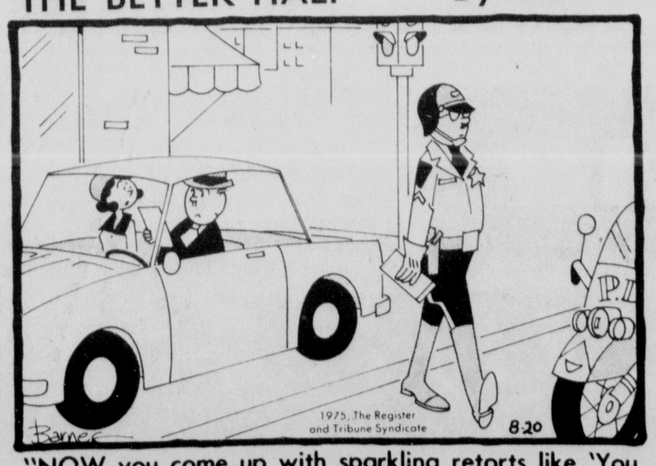

Unfortunately, these pills, particularly the amphetamines, can produce marked nervousness and irritability, raise the blood pressure, increase a heart rate and adversely affect the circulatory system and other organs of the body.

Soon you will learn, as others have, that you, and you alone, must curb your appetite in order to lose weight. Depending on drugs to do a job for you is fraught with danger.

Kent State case winding up

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A final witness was scheduled to take the stand today as victims of the 1970 Kent State University shootings challenged testimony that a civilian fired the first shot of the volley that felled 13 students five years ago.

If examination and cross-examination of W. E. Gerstenslager is short, attorneys might begin final arguments today, the lawyers said.

That would increase the likelihood that the jury would receive the case Thursday after the judge defined the issues and explained the law, court sources said.

Gerstenslager was identified as a former Kent State student who shared a ride home after the shooting with a defense witness who said a man in a sport coat fired a pistol in the air on the campus hillside where the gunfire erupted.

The defense witness, Joy Bishop of Canton, said Ohio National Guardsmen wheeled and shot at student demonstrators a split second after the man fired.

The shooting killed four students and wounded nine and the victims and their families are suing for $46 million in damages. The defendants include Gov. James A. Rhodes, former Kent State President Robert I. White and 27 former or present guardsmen.

The deadly 13-second volley came as guardsmen attempted to break up a campus antiwar rally May 4, 1970, after a weekend of rioting. The three nights of demonstrations that preceded the incident broke out after then-President Richard Nixon revealed the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia.

Two other students who Mrs. Bishop said watched from a dormitory rooftop with her also took the stand Tuesday. Bruce Phillips of Columbus, and Pat Frank Rivera of North Olmsted said there was no civilian in the area just before the shooting started.

Phillips said a man wearing a sport coat and carrying a pistol ran from the area five minutes after the shooting. Terrence Norman of Washington, D.C., has testified he pulled a gun on the hill to ward off attacks by demonstrators he was photographing for campus police.

Norman, who was wearing a sport coat, was chased to guardsmen's lines where he surrendered the pistol to a campus policeman. Norman and the policeman who said he received the handgun testified it had not been fired.

The victims also called a former New York City medical examiner to contest a defense claim that one student was wounded by a shot from a nonmilitary weapon.

Dr. Milton Helpern said Donald S. MacKenzie's neck wound "could readily be produced by a high-velocity bullet."

The defense had introduced testimony of an Army surgeon that the wound, which now is nearly invisible, probably was caused by a weapon much smaller than the .30-caliber rifles or .45-cal. pistols carried by the troops.

Garage burglary probed

A Washington C. H. man's garage was burglarized and a bad check was passed at Barnhart Oil, city police reported today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a theft incident at Deer Creek Reservoir.

A garage owned by Tom L. Coe, located behind his 636 High St. residence, was burglarized by someone who used a bolt cutter to break through two locks sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 2 a.m. Tuesday. Police reported a $50 drill, a $135 10-ton jack, and a $200 compressor with two spray guns and 50 feet of hose stolen.

The Barnhart Oil Co., 304 E. Market St., received a bad check for a tire purchase on June 16. Police reported a woman had entered the establishment to purchase a tire and a check with the bank verified she had an account, however her check bounced and she is no longer residing at the address she gave them.

A car belonging to Donald R. Bailey, Greenfield, was broken into while parked at the beach area at Deer Creek Reservoir. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported a citizens band radio, a case of 25 eight-track tapes and a pair of bluejeans containing Bailey's wallet stolen. The theft occurred around 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Terrorists said killed

HANITA, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops surrounded three Arab guerrillas in a wood near the border kibbutz of Hanita and killed them in a 30-minute battle, witnesses reported.

One Israeli soldier was reported wounded.

There was speculation that the guerrillas planned to try to make trouble during the visit of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who leaves Washington tonight for another attempt to complete negotiations of a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The troops held the guerrillas at bay for more than four hours before storming into the hilltop wood four miles from the Mediterranean.

Reinforcements who were rushed to the area provided a shield of men and armor between the wood and the fence surrounding the small farming community.

During the battle the guerrillas fired rocket grenades at the kibbutz but caused no damage or casualties there.

Mead operation back to normal

Injunction halts pickets at plant

BY ED SUMMERS

Operations at the Mead Containers Corp. plant in the Washington C. H. Industrial Park have returned to normal today following the issuance of a temporary restraining order Tuesday afternoon by Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman prohibiting picketing by striking Chillicothe plant employes.

Robert R. Gestrich, general manager of the Mead Containers Corp. here, said there were no pickets at the Washington C. H. plant today and that plant operations were back to normal levels.

Attorneys for the Mead Corporation had asked for the restraining order after members of two unions on strike at Mead's Chillicothe paper mill set up picket lines at the Washington C. H. plant Tuesday morning. Local employes on the first shift had refused to cross the lines due to "health and safety reasons." Some second shift employes did report to work, however.

The restraining order also enjoins employes at the container plant from participating in a strike, walkout, or picketing and restrains them from refusing to report to work because of outside picket activity.

According to the injunction filed by Mead Corporation attorneys, the picket lines and refusal of members of Local Union 1070 to cross the lines violated the union's agreement with the company. They also asked for $25,000 damages to compensate for lost revenue for each day the employes refused to cross picket lines.

Gestrich said the Mead Containers plant here was entirely separate and independent from Mead Corp. paper plant in Chillicothe and was not involved in any way with the Chillicothe labor dispute.

The two Chillicothe unions, Local 731 and Local 988 of the United Paperworkers International Union, went on strike Aug. 11, ten days after the expiration of their contract. The major issue in the strike is a proposed reduction in the company's pension plan.

An estimated 2,500 workers at the Chillicothe plant have been idled by the strike. The company's Escanaba, Mich., plant is also on strike.

Three issues eyed for ballot

City to draft measure for tax levy renewals

Washington C.H. City Council during a special session Tuesday night agreed to prepare legislation to place three tax levy renewals, totaling 2.3 mills, on the November general election ballot.

Emergency legislation placing a one-mill general operating levy, a one-mill police protection levy and a .30-mill levy for the operation of the Washington Cemetery will be considered at Council's next regular session on Aug. 27.

City officials are actually asking Washington C.H. voters to renew two one-mill tax levies which will expire effective Dec. 31 and the .30-mill cemetery levy which expired last December.

The tax levy issues must be submitted to the Fayette County Board of Elections before a Sept. 6 deadline in order that they can be included on the Nov. 4 ballot. A simple majority would be required for approval of the levies.

One-mill storm sewer and general operating levies expire on Dec. 31. However, City Council members are replacing the one-mill storm sewer renewal with a one-mill levy to provide funds for the operation of the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Both the one-mill general operating levy and the one-mill storm sewer levy, which is being replaced by the police protection levy, were approved by Washington C.H. voters in the fall of 1970 and were placed on the 1970 tax duplicate with distributions for five-year periods.

In order for the city to receive distribution of the tax levies in 1976, they must be renewed in November and placed on the 1975 tax duplicate.

The .30-mill cemetery operating levy expired in 1974. Council members had agreed to let the levy expire as part of an offer to exchange 4.3 mills in property taxes for a 1.25 per cent income tax. Washington C.H. voters rejected the city drawn plan in the November election.

Since the cemetery levy expired, nearly $11,000 has been taken from the city's general fund for the operation of the cemetery.

Fayette County auditor Mary Morris has estimated that the present valuation for the city is $38,556,352. Under the present valuation, the two one-mill levies would generate approximately $38,556 apiece per year and the .30-mill cemetery levy would produce about $11,574 per year for a total revenue of approximately $88,686.

Two other one-mill tax levies presently on the tax duplicate will expire in 1976. They are the one-mill fire protection and street improvement levies. Both were approved in the spring of 1971 and placed on the 1971 tax duplicate.

THREE PIECES of emergency legislation were unanimously approved by City Council members during Tuesday night's special session. Council member John E. Rhoads was absent.

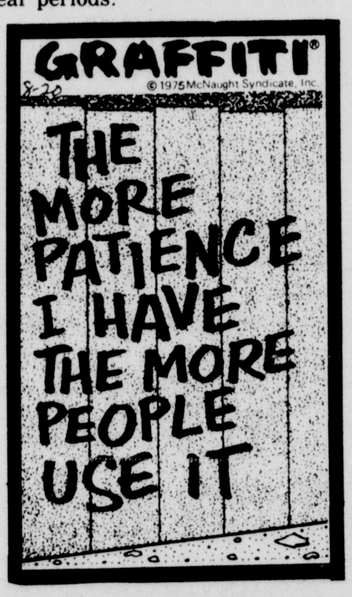

Approved were:

—a measure renewing a $42,000 street resurfacing note for a one-year period;

Minimum raised from $7,250 to $7,400

County board OKs base salary hikes for district's teachers

By MARK THELLMANN

Beginning teachers salaries in the Miami Trace School District were raised from $7,250 to $7,400 during Tuesday night's regular Fayette County Board of Education meeting.

The $7,400 figure is the new minimum salary expected to be instated by Ohio Gov. James Rhodes' signature in the very near future. The bill, which has been passed by both the house and senate on the state level, is presently on the governor's desk. Assistant Superintendent Steve Yambor discussed many points on the agenda in the absence of Superintendent Guy Foster. Yambor explained when Senate Bill No. 170 is finally signed by the governor several salary modifications will become effective.

"First of all, we are sorry we can only meet minimum salary requirements established by the bill," Yambor stated. "But we don't have the money to exceed the new state minimum at this point. The per cent of increase from $7,250 to $7,400, which figures out to be two per cent, will be applied to all certified employes salaries starting Aug. 28 and all non-certified employes starting Sept. 1."

Yambor added it should be remembered the bill makes provisions to hike the minimum to $7,900 during the 1976-1977 school year.

Other matters dealt with by board members concerning school personnel including beginning coverage of Blue Cross and Blue Shield starting Oct. 1 for the newly employed, employment, changes in contracts and resignations.

Richard Glass of Huntington, W. Va., was employed as the Miami Trace High School vocal music teacher. Recommended for employment to the board were teachers, Joan Rhoads and Nancy Johnson on a salary schedule for the two women had been teaching under temporary certificates and are now eligible for one-year contracts.

After passing a resolution to enter into a cooperative agreement to provide learning disabilities supervisor services for the Miami Trace School District and authorizing the Washington C.H. School District to count 650 Miami Trace School District students in order to apply for a full-time unit for psychological services, the board recommended Susan Gosset as the learning disabilities supervisor a one-year contract. Her services will be under a cooperative agreement with Washington C.H., Greenfield and Fairfield and each of these districts will be assessed about $150 per LD unit for costs beyond foundational program payments.

Elementary coordinator June Slaughter announced the resignation of teachers, LaVern Dickey (Madison Mills Elementary School) and Norilee Zimmerman (Wayne Elementary School). Mrs. Slaughter also stated Karen Shook will change from a full-time contract to a part-time contract in teaching music; Lila Engle will be accredited with two additional years teaching experience than what she had been originally, with salary adjustments in accord and Penny Johnson, who has completed her master's work, will also be granted a salary adjustment. Board members approved these changes.

Teacher employments announced by Mrs. Slaughter were Title I teachers - Penny Johnson, Evelyn Reser, Peggy Gass, Nancy Harper, Pat Thompson, Linda Zechman, Mary Sue Spengler, Peggy Lester, Karen DeMars, Linda Hyer, Martha Flemming (clerk), June Slaughter (coordinator), Nancy Chaney (secretary); educational aides - Shirley Hendricks, Joan Smith, Jean Higgins, Janice Spears, Weltha Garringer, Marsha Swyers, Ruth Stayrook, Charlotte Gilbert, Ruth Keiser, Martha Ankrom, Betty Bakenhester, Nancy Cupp, Mildred Donohoe, Sharon Hagler, Vivan Casto, June Fennig, Helen Kimpel and Jar-

Dockworkers return to piers

Load grain, judge orders

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Under a federal court order, longshoremen here resumed loading grain today aboard a ship bound for the Soviet Union.

The longshoremen had stopped loading wheat aboard a Yugoslav freighter, the Bosanka, in the Port of Houston late Monday, contending the sale of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union would cause domestic food prices to increase.

U.S. District Court Judge James Noel granted the West Gulf Maritime Shippers Association a temporary restraining order Tuesday night after being told by lawyers for the international Longshoremen Association — ILA — the workers "would not return without a court order."

Noel then scheduled a hearing for today on the shippers' plea for a permanent injunction aimed at preventing future work stoppages involving the loading of grain purchased by the Soviet Union.

ILA officials said Tuesday their international headquarters had said to halt loading such grain "until there is assurance the sale of this wheat would not be inimical to the American people."

Noel's order applied to longshoremen from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., but those in Houston were the only ones immediately affected.

The shippers asked Noel to order the longshoremen to live up to the terms of their contract, which forbids work stoppages.

The Bosanka was loading part of the 1.2 million metric tons of grain Cargill Inc., Minneapolis, is shipping to Russia under 1975 contracts.

An attorney for the ILA here had said the no-work directive aimed at Soviet grain would remain in effect "until there is assurance that the sale of this wheat would not be inimical to the American people."

Willie Wells, the president of ILA Local 1273, said the dock workers also want to see that U.S. ships and the American seamen who sail them share in transportation of the grain to Russia.

Noel asked ILA leaders Tuesday to tell the longshoremen to return to work, but he was told that the workers "would not return without a court order." He then issued the temporary restraining order and set the hearing on a permanent injunction.

West Coast longshoremen, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, say they will load Soviet grain.

The ILA work stoppage was criticized by government and farm leaders.

President Ford said in Minneapolis Tuesday, "I think it's in the best interests of the American consumer and I think it's in the best interests of the labor movement to permit the shipment of this wonderful commodity that we produce."

Ford said he hoped it would be possible to find a way to ship grain which has already been contracted for by the Soviet Union, as well as that which might be purchased in the future.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a White House conference on domestic and economic affairs at Peoria, Ill.:

"If the unions ... are so concerned about high food prices they should stop some of the feather-bedding that jacks up those very prices."

Russia has already purchased 9.8 million metric tons of wheat, corn and barley this year, compared with purchases of about 19 million metric tons in 1972 that helped send domestic prices spiraling.

Grain ripoff upsets customers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The great ripoff along the grain docks here has upset foreign customers to the extent that many export buyers now pay extra just to make sure they get what they pay for.

Harlan Ryan, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's grain division here, said 40 per cent of the grain shipped out of New Orleans these days is federally inspected.

"It's working us to a frazzle," said Ryan.

Normally, his 57 inspectors merely spot check the accuracy of private USDA-licensed agencies which grade and inspect corn, wheat, soybeans and other grains loaded onto ships in this port area.

Full federal inspection was unusual.

But criminal profits in the millions are reported skimmed off the $14 billion worth of grain exported annually and a continuing federal investigation of theft and fraud has resulted in indictments against 48 men and four companies at New Orleans, with more expected.

In reaction, some buyers for export have taken to making "federal appeals" in order to bypass private grain inspectors.

It costs an extra $2.25 per 1,000 bushels for federal inspection, plus $18.30 per overtime hour, with inspectors working 15 hours a day.

The hours are often unpleasant, since private inspectors go through the motions of the job right beside the federal men. Ryan calls it "a true exercise in futility."

A ship that recently took aboard 1.4 million bushels of Iowa corn had a federal inspection bill that totaled $22,203.

The $22,203 bought federal assurance that the ship was clean; the corn not sour or infested with weevils; that it was of good No. 2 yellow grade, not a lesser grade palmed off as No. 2 at the same price; and that there actually were 1.4 million bushels in the holds.

Foreign buyers have long complained about short weights and misgrading, but they had little recourse once it was delivered.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, attached heavy political significance to the fact that sheer market pressure already had forced a private inspection system to become 40 per cent federal.

"It goes to show that somebody, like the customers, believes in a federal inspection system," said Clark.

His reform bill to create such a system, financed by fees, has drawn opposition from the Ford administration, on the grounds that there is a need for less federal regulation, not more.

dina Waddle. Board members approved.

The textbook lists for both the elementary schools and the high school were approved by board members, as was a Bloomingburg School student handbook compiled over the summer by Principal Tom LeVan who was present at last night's meeting to introduce the publication.

The following teachers, cooks, custodians and bus drivers were employed as substitutes by board members: bus drivers - Howard Pinkerton, Cecil Harris, Donna Pendleton, Kenny Summers, Walter Hurtt, Howard Stewart, Thurman Brown, Rheta Colvin and Elmo Wilson; custodians - Rufus Newman, Dorothy Newman, Howard Runnels, and Betty Runnels; cooks - Patricia Ratliff, Barbara Riley, Bessie Allen, Harriett Smith, Urcel Burke, Virginia Smith, Nellie Scaggs, Norman Jean Puckett, Cathryn Jenkins, Norma Hoppes, Juleah Perril, Maxine Rumer, Edith Knox, Karen Winters, Marlene Merritt, Lurena Hickle, Mary Creamer, Jeri Park, Joan Straley, Dorothy Spradlin, Ethel Wood, Alice Long, Margaret Garringer, Laura Huff, Gladys Warner, Dorothy Wheeler, Barbara Toppins, Emily Bireley and Daisy Swyers;

Teachers - Earl Berisford, Lorraine Bower, Elba Brooks, Marilyn Burner, Jane Campbell, Carolyn DeWeese, Clara Mae Domby, Mary Belle Garringer, Grace Iden, Margaret Morrow, Karen Newland, Loa S. Parrett, Robert Parrett, Florence Seibert, Susan Stuckey, Linda Toler, Jean Waggoner, Janet Evans;

The school bus insurance contract was given by board members to Bill Pool Insurance and the trash hauling contract was awarded to Cartwright Hauling.

A food service policy was adopted by board members and price increases approved. Elementary student lunches were set at 55 cents, high school lunches at 60 cents and adults at 65 cents. An extra half-pint of milk for students was established at six cents and adults 11 cents. The high school will also offer an ala carte line with individually priced items.

Ruth Anders was employed on a six-hour working day schedule as a high school cook and Margaret Garringer was employed three hours a day as a cashier by board members.

The hourly pay scale for teachers involved with tutoring students who cannot attend school because of pregnancy, physcial injury or mishaps was raised from $4 to $5 per hour by the board.

Board members approved the list presented to them concerning students with handicaps who attend school out of district on a tuition basis. They also granted one parent $4 a day for taking her son to a bus in Jamestown and another parent 11 cents per mile per student (three students) who she drives to Columbus and back weekdays.

A kindergarten schedule which would have half the pupils attend Monday, Wednesday and every other Friday and the other half attend Tuesday, Thursday and the alternating Fridays was presented by Mrs. Slaughter and approved by board members.

Mrs. Slaughter explained to board members a plan allowing some Staunton second graders to attend Chaffin School and some Chaffin first graders to attend Staunton School, plus students from North Shore, Rosemont and Leslie Trace Court to attend Bloomingburg School instead of Eber. This student juggling plan is to balance class loads. The board approved.

Board members during a roll-call vote passed a resolution against local representation on the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District Board of Education requested by Highland and Clermont counties.

The Great Oaks Board of Education has by resolution requested the Ohio Board of Education to make the change to local board representation from county board representation.

Miami Trace High School Principal Curtis E. Fleischer presented the new student handbook for the upcoming school year. There were no major changes and board members gave their approval.

Yambor announced all school buses passed the state inspection but due to lack of interest in the auction of the four outdated buses, an attempt will be made to sell them on an individual basis.

Board member Marion Waddle sought the board's approval to allow the Staunton United Methodist Church to splice into the Staunton Elementary School drainage system. The board approved.

Yambor announced plans for the new Miami Trace athletic building were approved by the state and due to the fact the new facility is within 30 feet of the school building, a fire wall will have to be erected.

deposits during the two-year period will be $3,942,960 and the probable maximum amount to be deposited at any time during the period will be $325,000.

In other matters, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen, 301 E. Elm St., attended the meeting to protest statements made at Council's last regular meeting by Council members Mrs. Bertha McCullough, Joseph O'Brien and city street department superintendent Bill Duncan.

The statements were made during a report over a drainage problem at the Allen residence. The two Council members had suggested the installation of a catch basin on Sycamore Street to alleviate the problem, while Allen had requested the city grade an alley behind his home.

Jet crash kills 125

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A Czechoslovak jetliner carrying 128 persons crashed into a sandy knoll and exploded early today while trying to land at Damascus airport. Authorities said there were only three survivors, two children and a man.

It was the worst air disaster in Syrian history.

The four-jet Ilyushin 62 was coming in for a landing after a flight from Prague when, at 1:15 a.m., it dipped below the flight path and ripped into the hillock about 12 miles south of Damascus, an official at the airport control tower said.

"When it hit it, the plane jumped up and exploded," the official continued. "The wreckage came crashing down. Those who were not killed in the explosion were killed in the fire."

Fire trucks rushed to the open plain from the airport and doused the blaze within a short time, officials reported.

Officials said there were 117 passengers and a crew of 11 aboard the plane, which was on a flight from Czechslovakia to Damascus, Baghdad and Tehran.

Rescuers at first found only two survivors, a man and a child, and the first announcement from civil aviation authorities said 126 persons were killed.

Patty Hearst look-alike being sought

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A spokesman for the FBI says the federal agency is interested in interrogating three persons for whom the Kentucky State Police issued an all-points bulletin on Tuesday.

State Police issued the bulletin after a stolen credit card was used to buy an automobile in Frankfort.

Police said the owner of the car lot said the vehicle was purchased by two men and a woman and that the woman "looked" like fugitive Patricia Hearst.

Officers said one of the two men is wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Diane Louise Klaas, 18, of Rockford, Ill., last week.

The girl was beaten to death with two rocks and a State Police detective said it was the most brutal slaying he had seen in three decades.

State Police said they had no evidence, other than the car lot owner's description, that the woman might be Miss Hearst.

And the FBI spokesman, who asked not to be identified by name, said it is routine for agents to question persons whenever someone claims to have sighted Miss Hearst.

"Every time we get a report on anybody who looks like Patricia Hearst we immediately send out agents," the FBI spokesman said. "We've already had agents in Frankfort and down here, where we got the call to begin with."

He said a jewelry store clerk in Louisville had called the FBI earlier in the day about a woman customer resembling Miss Hearst.

"At the present time, it's a look-alike, and at the present time we have no leads on where they are," the spokesman said. "We would be very interested when they are picked up."

Stock prices down sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply again today in a wave of selling that dragged the Dow Jones industrial average below 800 for the first time since last spring.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, which has not closed below 800 since April 11, was down 10.79 to 797.72 at noon. Losers held a 5-1 edge on gainers in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was continuing its retreat in the face of concern over inflation and fears that resurgent upward pressures on prices would disrupt the economy's attempt to rebound from the recession.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .99 to 84 even.

Investors' confidence appeared to have been dealt a blow Tuesday when the Dow failed to hold at around the 810 level—a point which had been considered an area of underlying technical support.

The average's subsequent drop past 800 late this morning came without any signs of hestitation.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gave up .60 to 44.63.

Nixon bids for papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says that if he is given possession of his presidential tape recordings he will "follow as generous a rule as possible" in making them public.

But, he told lawyers in a deposition made public today, he reserves for himself and his family the right to decide what recordings will be made public.

"We will do it as expeditiously as possible," Nixon said.

The deposition was taken at a Coast Guard station that adjoins Nixon's home in San Clemente, Calif., on July 25. The former President answered questions for more than six hours.

Nixon said the confidentiality a president needs would be destroyed if a new law giving the government possession of his papers and tapes is allowed to stand.

"While the word secrecy ... to us in a free society is abhorrent, in terms of decision-making it is indispensable," Nixon said in the deposition.

Kissinger on mideast shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, leaving tonight to resume his Middle East shuttle diplomacy, says a Sinai settlement between Egypt and Israel would help blunt the move to suspend Israel from the United Nations.

Kissinger told a group of American Jewish leaders that such an agreement "will be very helpful, when and if it is reached, in doing away" with the Arab campaign to expel Israel from the U.N. General Assembly when it convenes next month, according to Rabbi Israel Miller of New York.

Dr. Miller, who headed the 10-member delegation that met Tuesday with Kissinger, said Kissinger also expressed the Ford administration's support for the defense needs of Israel.

"The concern of the Jewish community is that Israel would be pressured into taking stances that are not in its longterm benefit," Dr. Miller said. "We expressed the concern and we were reassured."

President Ford, assessing Kissinger's chances on his latest visit to the Middle East, said, "We feel we are reasonably close to a settlement at this time."

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, a senior Israeli politician said the United States would provide Israel about $2 billion in aid and guarantee oil supplies. The projected settlement includes Egypt's recovery of the Abu Rudeis oilfield, now the source of about half of Israel's oil.

Yitzhak Navon, a veteran member of the ruling Labor Party, said the United States will sell Israel "sophisticated and important arms," with terms to be arranged by Kissinger on this trip.

After Kissinger's last shuttle effort failed in March, the Ford administration deferred action on Israel's $2.8-billion military and economic aid request. This stalled Israel's bid for F15 jets, laser-guided bombs and 200 Lance mobile missiles.

Navon, speaking on Israeli state television, also said the proposed new interim pact between Israel and Egypt will include a mutual commitment to refrain from the threat or use of force.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ha'aretz reported that the agreement now being negotiated also calls for the United States to make a secret commitment to Israel to ensure that a buffer force remains in the Sinai even if U.N. troops were withdrawn in the next three years. The U.S. State Department and Israeli officials declined comment.

After a refueling stop in Britain, Kissinger will fly to Israel to begin his discussions. From there he will go to Egypt, with side visits planned to Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia in a 10-day trip.

I want to thank my relatives, friends and neighbors for their cards, flowers, prayers and words of encouragement during my recent stay at Riverside Methodist Hospital.

Kennedy probe reopened

It is gatifying that a superior court judge in Los Angeles has reopened the investigation into the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Persistent unanswered questions about this crime, notably the question whether someone besides the convicted murderer Sirhan Sirhan was involved in it, argue strongly for a further look at the case.

Specifically, Judge Robert A. Wenke has ordered that new ballistics tests be made by on the gun used by Sirhan. This is of particular importance because advocates of the so-called "second gun" theory have long maintained that Sirhan must have had an accomplice.

Wenke's order comes in the wake of other events bearing on the case. Paul Schrade, a former labor leader who is one of those wounded along with Kennedy in the 1968 episode, has filed suit demanding release of a 10-volume report on investigation into the shooting; in this suit he has been joined by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. It also is significant that the American Academy of Forensic Sciences has called for re-study of the physical evidence. One can hope that the reopened investigation will at last reveal the full truth of what happened when Kennedy was felled on June 5, 1968.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . . By John P. Roche

The retreat that refreshes

CHILMARK, MASS. (KFS) — It was 21 years ago this summer that my wife and I discovered Martha's Vineyard. It was quite a drowsy spot in those days: you could simply drive to the ferry station at Wood's Hole and invariably, without reservations, get your car on the next boat. We loved it, particularly since we were welcomed by friends to membership in a family cooperative that dated back to 1919, and have thus been able each summer to renew our acquaintanceship with the same sturdy band, their children, grandchildren, and now even an occasional great-grandchild. Like ourselves in the 1950s, new families have joined; alas, the formidable matriarchs of yesteryear have joined God and doubtless give Her as much good advice as we received.

One of the nicest aspects of this permanent yet changing commune, and the one I'm convinced that has assured its survival, is its total absence of idelogy. Over the years dedicated animosities have developed, but always of a non-theoretical character. If, from time to time, when the spirits were high and the flagons low, some sharpness surfaced, the aura of civility has always restored by the next morning. Again, no formalities, no structured apologies: just the pretense that nothing worth remembering had occurred. Now and then, perhaps, some malicious gossip behind the Barn, but St. Augustine's analysis of human character is not altered by a boat ride.

Sometime in the 1960s the Vineyard was "discovered" and became the "in" vacation spot among the exhausted elites of New York, Cambridge and Washington. Various members of our outfit, on encountering friends from these spots who had bought or rented houses, have always returned with the same story: it is impossible to explain our set up to "foreigners." We have, for example, a regular meal schedule seven days a week: breakfast at 8, lunch at 1, and dinner at 7 — all announced by vigorous ringing of a large ship's bell.

This strikes some observers as positively monastic; indeed, when my wife and I are invited to a friend's place for a drink after the beach and quietly exit around 6:30, I always explain we have to be back for Vespers! But our meals are not just food inputs — they are opportunities for conversation with friends one has not seen since last August and will in all probability not again encounter till next summer.

There are probably as many definitions of a "vacation" as there are people. The two main schools of thought on the island are those interested in recharging their batteries and others who are dedicated to overcharging their livers. Never having signed the pledge, I have no intention of criticizing the latter. However, we live on different wavelengths — for me a vacation is a kind of secular retreat. I have never been a "nature boy" and most of the savages I have known were anything but noble, but I find that I am refreshed by contact with the sea and the sky.

There is an elemental power in the sea that is virtually immune to human meddling. As a child whose father spent years at sea, and later as a devoted reader of Joseph Conrad, I learned respect for the ocean, respect later empirically buttressed by riding breakers and feeling their prodigious power. Where we are located, the sea has been emorselessly eating away at the clay bluffs. When we first came, they were 25-feet high and we went down by rope; now, at the same point, the embankment is 2-feet high. A couple of hundred yards out to sea is a rock with a ring attached: century ago, the bull was tethered to this ring in a farmer's meadow! And the sound of breakers is surely the most efficient cure for insomnia ever discovered.

Often it seems as though the sea and sky are in competition. Some evenings, notably those which follow very hot days on tthe mainland, we sit in the barn door and watch the fog roll in. The first stars to vanish are on the horizon, but gradually the soft night extinguishes the others and your flashlight throws an eerie tunnel of illumination. However, when the skies are clear the view is literally sunning. Not only is there very little smog, but the metropolis of West Tisbury throws little reflection into the night sky.

The other night, for example, you could reach up and grab the Kite's tail, and other constellations were equally overpowering. On top of this, we are in the shooting star season, and in the course of three hours spotted a couple of dozen slashing down through the heavens. My wife claims that watching the sea and the stars brings out the secret mystical strain in me.

I can't testify to the truth of that, but I will admit I get a probably badly needed sense of humility from stargazing and sea-watching. A columnist, who by definition is supposed to act as an authority on everything, suddenly realizes that the light he is seeing from a distant star set out on its journey when our earth was still a lifeless, molten mass.

On Feb. 8, 1962, rioting in Paris of thousands of left-wing demonstrators against the Right Wing Secret Army Organization claimed wight lives and injured hundreds.

Mrs. Gall promotes equality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Maryann Baker Gall is determined sex equality shall prevail in Ohio.

She may be able to help, too. She's the first woman in state history to be chief counsel to the attorney general.

Mrs. Gall also heads the new Women's Law Project designed to activate legislation on about 100 recommendations proposed last month by the Ohio Equal Rights Amendment Task Force.

"We don't need to wait for the amendment to pass," said Mrs. Gall. "Under the Constitution and Supreme Court decisions, the recommendations already are mandated."

Another recommendation she backs strongly would change Ohio law holding the husband primarily responsible for support of his wife and children, and make both parties mutually responsible.

"Society is changing," she said. "More women are working and making salaries comparable with men. A court should look at the capabilities of each parent to pay.

"I know traditional-minded women will disagree, but people should be independent. That's an important principle."

Mrs. Gall has other beliefs about women. "At one time, I thought a person had to choose motherhood or a career," she said. "But, I see a lot of people doing both successfully. Maybe the house wouldn't be too clean, but the alternative is too limiting."

Running a staff of nine attorneys brings no discrimination for Mrs. Gall, the only woman among "the five guys" who comprise the attorney general's cabinet. "They even get bugged when we walk into a hearing and the opposing counsel asks me if I'm the court stenographer or the judge's secretary," she said with a happy laugh.

Accepting women as lawyers "is a learning thing," she believes.

"Sometime much of the private sector still resists," she said. "I went through college with good grades, had no trouble in law school, but when I started job interviewing I was told without exception that women attorneys were not being hired."

Mrs. Gall approves all the recommendations of the Equal Rights Task Force, but she would be surprised if they all passed even in two or three legislative sessions.

"Our hardest work is still to come — convincing people the recommendations are good," she said. "What we on the task force did only reflects society.

"The recommendations aren't intended to force people to be different than they are," she said. "They only indicate the changes that already are taking place."

In Roman numerals the letter C represents 100.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Teacher in school daze a problem for family

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for five years and have two children. Ward is 26 and I'm 25.

Ward teaches sixth grade students, and he loves his work. That's the trouble: he loves it too much. All summer, he mooned around like a lovesick calf saying how much he missed his "kids". He has two children of his own who could use a little more of his attention.

Last semester, Ward talked endlessly about one of his girl students. He would even call her on the phone to visit with her in the evenings. He says it's not exactly a "physical" attraction, but he would like to see her mature and blossom, and he would even like to have a hand in choosing her husband! Is this normal for a husband and father, Abby?

On weekends he'd get "the blues" and could hardly wait for Monday so he could get back to his "kids." And on Fridays he would get the blues again. I think it's wonderful for a man to love his work so much, but he makes me feel as though the children and I are a drag.

Do you think his feelings for his "kids" at school have reached a dangerous point? Please tell me what to do about this.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is either immature or dangerously involved (emotionally) with his work. He needs counseling to get his priorities in order. Urge him to get it, fast.

DEAR ABBY: My father makes a lot of mistakes when he talks. He says, "He don't," and, "They was."

I am only 14 and happen to believe that it is never too late for a person to learn. My father is only 34, and he was born in this country.

Sometimes I correct him in front of people because if I wait and tell him later, he claims he never said it, and a fight developes. My father has a hot temper and hates to be corrected, especially in front of people.

Shouldn't adults take criticism with a smile and appreciate it even if it does come from a 14-year-old kid?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: No one, regardless of his age, appreciates criticism from a 14-year-old kid in front of others. Your intentions may be good, but your timing is poor. Cool it.

DEAR ABBY: No one would think of dropping in on his minister without calling first to set up an appointment, right? So why do ministers think they have the right to drop in on their parishioners without any advanced notice just because they happen to be in the neighborhood?

One afternoon last week, I entertained some out-of-town friends and served some of my homemade apple cider. I am not a big drinker, but it was very warm that day, so I had more than I should have-and on an empty stomach, yet.

Well, no sooner had my guests departed when my minister rang the bell. I don't remember what I said, but I do recall that I babbled on and on and just couldn't quit talking. The minister couldn't get a word in edgewise. I am sure I made a perfect fool of myself.

Anyway, now I can't look him in the eye. I hope you put this in your column because I know he reads you, and I want him to know that I don't usually sip cider in the afternoons. Also, if he ever calls again, please phone first.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE WILSON

Golden anniversary observed by Wilsons

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson of Rt. 5, London, observed their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 12. The former Miss Mabel Allen and Mr. Wilson were married Aug. 12, 1925, in Leesburg.

They have five daughters, Mrs. Delbert (Margaret) Cornell and Mrs. Kenneth (Janice) Rodgers of South Solon, Mrs. Roger (Jane) Watts of South Charleston, Mrs. Gomer (Anna) Legg of London, and Mrs. Wayne (Flossie) Dillion of London; and a son, Clarence Wilson Jr. of South Charleston. They also have 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Wilson is a sister to Mrs. Straud Mathena, 1097 Spring Lake Dr., and Miss Flossie Allen of 147 Caldwell St., Chillicothe.

Anniversary observed by the Browns

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Brown of 110 E. Newberry St., were honored Sunday on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. Brown and the former Florence Yeoman were married Aug. 17, 1925, by the Rev. Charles W. Graham in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Covington, Ky.

The couple have two children: Mrs. Larry Stephenson (Linda) of Mt. Gilead, and Mrs. Alvin (Wilma) Dorn of near Washington C.H., and three grandchildren, Anne and Scott Stephenson and Jill Dorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were guests of their daughters and their families at the Golden Lamb in Lebanon, after which they spent the remainder of the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn, visiting with the family. Awaiting at the Dorn home was a lovely appointed anniversary table with a tiered cake of gold and white, topped with a gold "50". Completing the setting was an arrangement of yellow mums with a "50", gold candles and other silver appointments.

The legendary "passion flower," an intricate flower that never blooms longer than a day, is now available at florists due to a new process that lengthens the life of the bloom. The process, developed by a New Hartford, New York, firm, permits the passion flowers to be used as a fresh flower in bouquets, corsages and floral arrangements. The passion flower, brought to the Americas by early Spanish settlers, has been known since early Christian times.

The Chinese recorded the first cases of "sensitive teeth" in 2500 BC. The problem continues, affecting one of every seven Americans, recent surveys show. Modern "treatment" often consists of switching toothpastes to one containing a non-toxic strontium chloride (Sensodyne).

CHICKEN OROBIANCO

From 1973's "The Good Housekeeping Cookbook" and a favorite of the book's editor, Zoe Coulson.

¼ cup olive oil
2 garlic cloves, quartered
4 whole medium chicken breasts, halved
2 pounds hot Italian sausage links
2 cups light muscat
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
Toast slices, cut in half diagonally
2 tablespoons cornstarch

In 12-inch skillet over medium heat, in hot olive oil, cook garlic until golden; with slotted spoon, remove garlic and discard. In drippings in skillet over medium-high heat, cook chicken and sausages, a few pieces at a time, until browned on all sides. Spoon off all but 2 tablespoons drippings. Return chicken and sausage to skillet. Stir in wine, mushrooms and salt; heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover skillet and simmer 30 minutes or until chicken is fork-tender, basting occasionally with liquid in skillet. On warm platter, arrange toast; with tongs, place chicken and sausage on toast; keep warm. In cup, blend cornstarch and ¼ cup water until smooth; gradually stir into hot liquid and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened. Spoon some of sauce over chicken. Pass remaining sauce separately. Makes 8 servings.

Kelleys attend food convention

Mr. and Mrs. B.E. Kelley recently attended the two-day 20th annual convention of the Natural Food Association of Ohio, held in the huge Malabar High School building in Mansfield, where they were given honors in recognition for their many years of activity in the state and national associations and Columbus chapter, of which they are charter members.

A banquet Saturday night, attended by several hundred members, and state and national officers was featured with all natural food. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley were seated at the speaker's table, and Mrs. Kelley gave the opening pray.

Dr. Joe D. Nichols, M.D., national president and Tom Lavin, national secretary, both of Atlanta, Tex., where National headquarters and demonstration farms are located, were among the outstanding speakers, with enjoyable entertainment by Sect., Lavin.

Other speakers of national note were Dr. Charles Walters on Eco-Agriculture and its vast importance in farming, and Dr. John Nash Ott, Sec. D., Director of the Environmental Health and Light Institute in Sarasota, Fla.

Farmer Francis Winkowitsch of Iowa, who followed the orthodox methods of farming until crops started failing and his livestock sickened and die due to using one type of chemical fertilizer, told he started using nature and natural methods in farming, and for years has drawn thousands of interested farmers to his farm. "IF the life is not in the soil, it can not be in anything grown in the soil," he declared. He said soil is being ruined by chemicals applied year after year, and his cost of proper fertilization on his farm, with its notable crop production (185 bushels of corn to the acre) costs him about $5.00 per acre on his Iowa farms. Multitudes of angle or earth worms provide most of the soil fertilizer by their casting, he explained.

DO apply fragrance to pulse points — wrists, crook of elbow, throat, behind ears, temples and behind knees. That the heat of your body strengthens the scent may be an old wives' tale, but it's definitely sexy to discover a bit of hidden fragrance at these zones.

DO take advantage of the fleeting scent of summer flowers. Dry your favorites and make a potpourri that you can keep in the bath or on your dressing table. It's the touch of summer you'll need next January.

DON'T rely on your clothes to make you smell great. Spraying clothing is a super way to reinforce scent, but it doesn't substitute for letting the scent combine with your skin's natural oils.

DO surround yourself with a soft mist of fragrance by scenting lingerie. Glamour suggests putting a few drops of cologne or perfume into the rinse water when you wash your underthings.

DON'T lose the pleasure of fragrance just because your nose has gotten "immune" to a particular scent. Try a new one. It can be fun to experiment with something exactly the opposite of what you've been wearing. It's also a way of expanding your sensual experience.

Miss Pierce, Mr. Keller exchange marriage vows

Miss Georgeanna Pierce became the bride of Paul P. Keller in the Hickory Lane Church of Christ. The Rev. Keith Wooley performed the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce of 822 Leesburg Ave., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Keller of Bloomingburg - New Holland Rd.

Arrangements of gladioli and carnations in blue and white and lavender adorned the altar. Mrs. Wooley, organist, presented pre-nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white double knit long gown with an overlay of lace. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Deborah A. Bainer was brides matron for her sister. She wore a long lavender knit dress.

Ed Orihood served as best man. Rusty Bainter seated the wedding guests.

Mrs. Pierce chose a long pink and white knit dress for her daughter's wedding, and the groom's mother wore an apple green double knit and chiffon dress.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Hostesses were Mrs. Hilda Kinzer and Mrs. Deborah Bainter.

The couple is now residing on Jamison Rd. The new Mrs. Keller, a graduate of Washington Senior High School in 1972, is employed by Steele Data Processing. Her husband is employed by Versa Corporation.

Natural gas pinch could hurt severely

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

A 60 per cent curtailment in natural gas coupled with a severe winter could create widespread plant shutdowns and resulting unemployment in Ohio.

An Associated Press survey of Ohio industry showed that large industry is geared to use alternate sources of fuel. Most will go to fuel oil, which is not only more expensive but also in short supply.

"Someone is going to get hurt, and I'm afraid it's the people," said Harry E. Uehlein of Heekin Can Co. in Cincinnati. "I really don't know how it is going to work out. I'm concerned about people who may lose their jobs."

John Has, manufacturing manager at Heekin, said the firm might stop producing beer and beverage cans which have a low profit margin. He said 333 employes are involved in the process.

In the other end of the state, Cleveland City Forge Co. said it will close its plant at Wellington, putting 40 employes out of work.

"We can't go through another winter like the one last year," said Manager Della Serra. The plant will be vacated in midSeptember, he said.

Ironically, 1974 was a mild winter. Cleveland City Forge had a 55 per cent curtailment of gas. Although 60 per cent industrial curtailment is the figure most commonly used in discussing the coming winter, some experts said it might be 70.

Large Ohio industries, for the most part, have geared for the shortage. The Akron rubber industry, for example, will use coal and General Motors Corp. has drilled its own gas well near its large Lordstown plant.

Republic Steel in Cleveland, which used more than $16 million worth of natural gas in 1973, cut the figure to $6 million last year and hopes to use less this winter. The saving is going to the more expensive fuel oil.

"We sure will be hurt," said Milton Schloss of Kahn's Meat Packing Co. in Cincinnati. "In some processes, we can't use anything but gas. A heavy cutback here could lay off 150-200 people."

Boilers at the firm are being fitted for oil but Schloss said it will cost three times as much, giving competition in other parts of the country an edge in sales.

"If it happens tomorrow, we'll be out of business," said J.C. Mashburn of Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Cincinnati which uses gas to wash bottles. The company tore out its coal-burning facilities several years ago at the suggestion of Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., he said.

Mashburn said coal furnaces would not be put back in "because there is a shortage of all fuel."

At Newport, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, Interlake Steel Co. faces a 100 per cent curtailment of natural gas. It has reserve fuel of 260,000 gallons of propane and a million gallons of oil, which spokesman Sid Galloway said would last one month.

Rodney Chapman, plant engineer at Buckeye Steel Castings in Columbus, said his plant, which employes 1,800, was in the process of switching to propane and oil facilities.

"We haven't had trouble getting it in the past but we've never used as much," he said. "I don't know how we will do this winter."

Ohio energy chief Robert S. Ryan and James Duerk, director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development, have warned the gas shortage could cause a major setback in the state's economy.

Ryan said 1.6 million mandays were lost last winter when the curtailment was not so great and the weather mild. Severe weather, he said, could bring about larger curtailments.

Duerk said the curtailment could stop what improvements the state has made in employment. The Ohio unemployment rate for June was 9.1 per cent.

DP&L wins gas rate increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has agreed to a rate increase of 67 cents per 100 cubic feet of natural gas for customers of Dayton Power & Light Co.

The PUCO said the increase was needed because of natural gas curtailment restrictions handed down by the Federal Power Commission.

Commissioners have not determined the effect of the new rates on bills of individual customers.

The state regulatory agency said DP&L had another $4.8 million coming to realize the revenue level authorized Feb. 20, but cut because of the decrease in available gas.

After receiving interim approval in February for a 5.58 per cent hike, DP&L submitted evidence April 17 that FPC curtaiilments would not allow it to sell enough gas to generate authorized gross annual revenues of $83.59 million.

"Once again, chaotic curtailment policies of Congress and Washington bureaucracies have placed the cost burden squarely on the shoulders of the consumer," PUCO Chairman C. Luther Heckman said.

Tammy Michael, 17, also of Lima, was also killed in the wreck. She was a passenger in the other car.

Many firms ignore signals of trouble

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many small-and medium-size business men prefer to slide down the chute to bankruptcy with their eyes closed and their arms folded rather than recognize the warning signals.

That is the observation of some accountants and others who are called in during the terminal days of once-healthy concerns.

"You'd be surprised how many either will turn their backs on realities or minimize the warning signals when they occur," states an executive of Coopers & Lybrand, the big accounting firm.

Maintaining that "there has never been such a period of uncertainty in predicting the future," the firm is preparing to publish for its clients an advisory booklet on sound planning and cash control techniques.

One tip: Read those sales reports carefully. Salesmen often fear to report dropping orders lest it reflects on their performance, the accountants say. A change in the order "mix" also can foretell dangers.

"A shift in sales mix toward less profitable products is a development that frequently occurs hand in hand with a decrease in sales volume," the booklet will say, making the onset of trouble doubly deadly and swift.

Some other signals of trouble:

—Your customers, who themselves might be pressed, request delays in shipment of orders already placed, thus preventing you from converting products into cash. And the goods might have to be stored at your expense.

—Your customers reject discounts for early payment and ask for longer periods in which to settle. This increases the financing cost to you and adds to the risk of not being able to collect at all, at least in full.

—The quality of your company's work is slipping. Idle time is increasing. Hirings act contrary to management's plans, especially in the costly areas of hiring and purchasing.

In fighting back, the accounting firm says, the businessman must focus on mobilizing cash, instituting cash controls, improving revenue and using his credit more wisely.

Unproductive assets should be put to work. Funds should be used more intensively. "You should consider using bank wires or telephone transfer checks which can move funds overnight from branch office to head office," they advise.

Bewteen 1880 and 1920, two million Jews came to America from eastern Europe, refugees from Czarist Russia, Rumania and Hungary.

Next to the nutrition judging area in the Lausche Buiilding will be the home economics demonstrations with Cindy Baird, Cynthia Blue, Rhonda Hecoax, Diane Burke and Diane Blessing presented their demonstrations during the 9:30 a.m. judging. Nancy Rapp and Kathy Junk will present their demonstrations at 1 p.m.

Fayette County will be represented in the creative arts 4-H judging with Susie Pero's hand-painted animal designs, dried apple dolls and animal creatures made from bread dough and corn husk wreath while Cheryl Blue will display her embroidered saddle bag, corn cob dolls and crocheted bookworm. Pam Doyle's Child Care notebook will also be on display as an example of the new "self-determined" project in which a member designs a project beyond what is currently available.

Seven participants will represent Fayette County in the state fair style revue Aug. 29. Terri Wissinger, Debbie Cremeans, Vicki Patton, Jo Brown, Loretta Braun, Tammy Walters and Gretchen Krieger will be practicing modeling for the style show at 3:30 p.m. in the youth center auditorium. At 12:30 p.m., the participants are divided into groups in which they score each other on fashion, grooming, posture, poise, construction, fit, design and personable qualities while a professional instructor also scores each group.

In the 3:30 p.m. style revue that day, Gretchen Krieger will be competing for the State Fashion Board and Loretta Braun will be submitting forms to try for the National Dress Revue. The Rhoads Auditorium will be opened at 3:10 p.m. for the style revue.

In other state fair activities involving Fayette County youth, the 4-H dog obedience trials will be held Aug. 29 and 30 at the beef arena. Displaying their skills with their dogs will be Jeff Harper, Becky Warner, Kevin Persinger, Lu Brown, Vikki Bock, Gary Cobb, all of the "Best of Friends" 4-H club.

Mark Johnson and Rick Aleshire will be exhibiting in the junior division of the rabbit show on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Breeding swine and beef breeding shows will be held throughout the State Fair as the various breeds are scheduled. Area 4-H'ers showing in the breeding swine show will be Cindi Grover (Tamworth), Anna Wehner (Landrace), Jon Wilt (Chester White), Joe Garland (Commercial), Mark Holloway (Yorkshire) and Marilyn Seifried (Yorkshire).

Local representatives in the beef breeding class will be Cindy Baird (Angus), Sharon Baird (Angus), Susan Wilson (Angus and Shorthorn) and Mary Ann Wilson (Angus and Shorthorn).

HOME FURNISHINGS — Cheryl Blue discusses the home furnishings project she will be exhibiting at the Ohio State Fair with Gladys Kirk, county home economics extension agent. Judging of the home furnishing projects will be held Thursday.

Ford pleased by journey

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford says his two-day swing through the Midwest was "productive, constructive and worthwhile" and he plans more public question-and-answer sessions to learn the views of the American people.

Ford returned to this mountain resort Tuesday night after 10 official and political appearances in Colorado, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois and told reporters, "I'm ready to go again tomorrow."

The President will play golf and tennis here four more days before starting back to Washington on Sunday, stopping off at Libby Dam in Montana and in Chicago and Milwaukee.

He planned to phone Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today to discuss final details before Kissinger leaves tonight on another round of Middle East diplomacy. Ford said Tuesday: "We feel reasonably close to a settlement."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was delighted with a question-and-answer session Tuesday in Peoria, Ill., where he appeared before a regional White House conference on domestic issues.

After a brief address, the President fielded questions from the audience of 750 for about 25 minutes — covering the economy, energy, civil rights and other matters.

"The President thought the questioning went well," Nessen said. "He thought the questions reflected the concerns of the people in that area and he wants to continue this format in the future."

The development prompted one White House aide to quip: "if it plays in Peoria ...," adopting a slogan made famous in the administration of President Richard M. Nixon.

Nab fugitive in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — FBI agents here have arrested Joseph Milton Hill, who is accused of kidnaping and robbery in connection with a Washington, D.C. incident last Jan. 28.

An FBI spokesman said after the arrest Tuesday that Hill and his brother, Alphonzo Milton Hill, each was charged with kidnaping while armed, armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and carrying a deadly weapon.

Both are scheduled to be tried in D.C. Superior Court. The brothers are accused of forcing two men into a car in downtown Washington in the early morning hours of Jan. 28. They were arrested by D.C. police who stopped the car a short time later.

The FBI spokesman said the brothers fled after being released on bond and the U.S. attorney's office issued a warrant for their arrest for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The FBI then entered the case.

Woman takes over operation of San Diego county jail

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Next month, a woman will begin running the troubled San Diego County jail.

Elizabeth Clark, 50, was appointed Tuesday to take over the jail under the county's new corrections department.

Sheriff John Duffy, now in charge of the jail, has vowed a court fight to resist the takeover.

Mrs. Clark, the first woman in California to be named head of a county jail, is currently juvenile services director in the probation department, where she has worked for 23 years.

She says she has no "grandiose plans" for the jail but that she doesn't plan to stand pat, either — "There should be change within a couple of months."

The jail has been under heavy criticism in recent years. Built for 700 inmates, it now holds about 1,400.

A grand jury is now investigating charges of brutality against inmates by sheriff's deputies, and earlier this year a civilian guard was convicted of smuggling in narcotics for inmates.

Mrs. Clark said she plans to take a "humanistic" approach to the jail.

"We are looking at a fairly old facility that is severely overcrowded," she said. "The facilities for women are not adequate. The facilities for recreation and exercise are not adequate."

She says one of her goals will be to shift more inmates into honor programs and "halfway houses," to get them out of the jail cells and into meaningful activity.

County supervisors are currently locked in a battle over the jail. By a 3-2 vote, they created the corrections department and renamed the jail the Adult Detention Center, taking it from under Duffy's jurisdiction.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Eddie Egan was a policeman, he spent a good deal of his time trying to look like something else.

Now he isn't a policeman, but he is spending a lot of time acting like one.

Egan, the former New York City detective whom Gene Hackman portrayed in "The French Connection," is costarring in a new NBC-TV cop series, "Joe Forrester."

It is another in a string of police roles he has played in films and television since winding up 20 years on the force in December 1971.

Besides "The French Connection" and "Badge 373," about his own career, Egan has appeared in "Mannix," "Police Woman," "Metro Man" and "Night of Terror."

As an undercover agent he adopted identities to hide the fact that he was a policeman. He took to role-playing in his social life, too, so that he would not put off people who might get uptight if they knew an officer was in their midst.

Now he is playing the part of a uniformed cop, and it sometimes makes him feel like he never left the police force.

"I come in at 8 a.m. every day, put on my uniform and work until 4 or so, take it off and go home," Egan reflected one day during a break in filming at Columbia Pictures.

"I live by the rules and regulations of the department: I won't smoke or drink on location because I figure someone's going to see me and write a letter saying, 'What kind of policemen do we have working for us?'

"So here I thought I was retiring, and I'm still doing it."

And loving it, no doubt. Egan is all policeman no matter what he's doing. He refers to his "Joe Forrester" scripts as "cases."

Egan returned to Hollywood a few months ago after two years in Florida, where he worked as a private detective and also wrote four movie scripts based on his police experiences.

Policeman, actor — they blend together in Eddie Egan.

One night a couple of week ago, during the filming of a "Joe Forrester" episode in downtown Los Angeles, Egan decided to pass some time looking at magazines in a liquor store.

He was standing there in full uniform when he heard a commotion and looked up to see a man hitting the store clerk with a beer bottle.

Always the cop, Egan sprang into action and wrestled the assailant into submission. Then he turned him over for arrest to a real policeman who was directing traffic for the TV production company.

Says Egan: "I guess the police department is still in my blood."

Cincy hosted first state fair

By The Associated Press

Tickets sold for 20 cents with a night in a Cincinnati hotel from $1 to $1.50, except for the Burnet House, which cost $2.

That was Ohio's first state fair 125 years ago in early October at Camp Washington, two miles from the center of Cincinnati.

It was the start of yearly junkets by thousands of Ohioans to the state fair, continuing with this year's exposition beginning Thursday.

The infant state Board of Agriculture intended that the first fair would promote sound agricultural practices among Ohio farmers.

Each exhibitor was charged a $1 entry fee, which entitled him to a badge and free admission during the three-day event. Other fairgoers could also buy badges for the same price, admitting the holders and their families or a gentlemen and two ladies. Single admission tickets were 20 cents.

The first fair, as researched by Nancy Essex of the Ohio Historical Society, was held on the Hamilton turnpike and Miami canal. Along with the agricultural exposition, the American Pomological Congress, the Ohio Mechanics' Institute and Cincinnati Horticulture Society also met.

To get to the exposition, a fairgoer could take the omnibus from central Cincinnati areas or the packet boats that left Main Street every half hour from the canal bridge.

From outside Cincinnati, easiest transportation was railroad. The lines agreed to run extra trains on the first five days of the month at half fare.

Extra trains left from Springfield, Xenia and Columbus. Half-fare trains also ran from Sandusky and Bellefontaine. The railroads transported exhibits free.

Exhibitors brought all types of livestock sheep, cattle and horses.

Categories in which prizes were awarded varied. Classes were set up for Ohio products, foreign (out-of-state) products and a combination of both.

Receipts totaled $11,000 for the first fair, including exhibitor's fees and receipts from sales of lumber and property after the fair. Expenditures equaled $12,500 with the $1,500 to be made up by the 1850 Fair Board.

A publication of the time wrote after the fair's closing:

"The spacious enclosure, with its grassy slopes and inviting shade trees its numerous tent and booths with waving flags and streamers; the throngs of cheerful spectators; the countless carriages, omnibuses and canal boats, all moving and swarming with people; the prancing horses, and lines of stately cattle, the whirl and clatter of machinery and the sound of martial music all combine to produce an effect on the minds of spectators not easily forgotten by such as never before attended an exhibition of the kind."

Set admission fee at Glen Helen

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Antioch College in mid-September will begin charging admission on holidays and weekends to Glen Helen, the 1,000-acre nature preserve bordering the campus.

The glen director, Ralph Ramey, said the charges will probably be $1 for persons over 18 and 50 cents for children. He said a 50-cent parking fee now being charged will be dropped.

Students, faculty and staff and those holding membership in the Glen Helen Association will not be charged, Ramey said.

DOWNTOWN WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE

Independent business federation topic at Rotary Club's meeting

The functions of the National Federation of Independent Businessmen were explained to members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Joseph Metcalf, a district manager for the National Federation of Independent Businessmen, said the organization has a total of 430,000 members across the nation.

The federation was founded in 1942 when the nation was operating under a controlled economy because of World War II.

According to Metcalf, the federation is basically "a voice for the independent businessman."

Metcalf said through a questionnaire mailed to members monthly businessmen receive an opportunity to express their opinions on issues which could ultimately affect them.

Both sides of pending issues are presented in the monthly questionnaires and the small businessmen express their opinions by voting. The results are then tabulated by the federation and action is initiated.

The federation sponsored proposals to reduce excess paperwork for businesses, pushed for stronger anti-trust legislation in an effort to protect the smaller business firms and protested against post offices selling postal-related items such as scales and stamp holders following a considerable outcry from federation members.

Metcalf called the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) "a prime example of overzealous bureaucracy." He said one small firm was fined under the act for not providing hangers in a restroom area for employes to hang their coats.

"The federation is dedicated to the free enterprise system to protect the interests of small businesses," Metcalf said.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams. The program was arranged by John Rhoad.

During the meeting, Paul Crosby presented a $100 check to be used in the Rotary International foundation program in memory of the late Lowell M. (Pete) Hayes. The memorial gift was accepted by George Finley, chairman of the Washington C. H. club's foundation committee.

All Rotary clubs contribute to the foundation which establishes a massive scholarship program. Graduate students are sent abroad to study with expenses being defrayed through the foundation.

Also during the meeting, Hugh Wilson, 719 Fairway Drive, was accepted as a new member. He was sponsored by Richard Whiteside.

Visiting Rotarians were Tom Elsea, Circleville, Everett Royer, London, and Robert McNeely, Mount Sterling. Guests were Dean Rice with Don Bailey, John Marcum with John Lachat, Dr. James McCracken with Paul Crosby and Dave McMillan with Lee Kraus.

Phone book delivery begins

GREENFIELD — Delivery of new telephone directories is under way in Greenfield and Leesburg, the General Telephone Co., of Ohio has announced.

Tom R. O'Neil, Wilmington customer service manager, said a specially-commissioned painting of the first official American flag appears on the front cover of the directories in observance of the nation's bicentennial. The only words on the cover are "1776-1976 The 200th Birthday of our Country."

Customers are reminded to check out the introductory pages. They have been redesigned for simplicity and provide information such as emergency numbers, toll-free calling points and instructions for calling another number of a party line.

Instructions on page 4 explain procedures for direct-distance dialing.

"Some of our customers have problems with direct-dialed calls," O'Neil said, "because they fail to answer the operator who asks for their number."

Calls cannot be completed without this information which is used for billing purposes.

One directory is being sent to each household in an effort to reduce printing and paper costs. In the past, one book was allotted for each telephone. Business customers will experience no change.

O'Neil predicted that 680 fewer directories will go to homes in the area this year. This represents a savings of nearly 140 pounds of paper.

"Taken alone, the savings may be insignificant," he said, "but when figured on a statewide basis, General Telephone would save more than 54 tons of paper in one year."

General Telephone serves 734,000 telephones, including 162,400 residence extensions in 80 Ohio counties.

O'Neil reminded customers to check out familiar numbers that may not be answering. "It may be that the number has changed."

Any customer not receiving a new book by Aug. 28 should call the business office.

Greenfield woman receives jail term for disturbance

A Greenfield woman was fined and sentenced to jail in Washington C.H. Municipal Court Tuesday for her part in a disturbance in the downtown area early Tuesday.

Rita K. Fridley, 22, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail for resisting arrest. She was also fined an additional $100 on a disorderly conduct charge.

She was arrested, along with Katherine S. Simmons, 33, Greenfield, in the basement of the Emerald Inn, S. Fayette Street, when Washington C.H. police investigated loud voices coming from the bar.

Officers said Ms. Fridley became violent and attempted to hit Patrolman Mike Stritenberger with a bar stool before she was subdued and placed in the cruiser.

Ms. Simmons, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $100 and costs for her part in the incident.

Both women pleaded guilty to the charges.

Marilyn Elliott, 28, of 3407 Old Springfield Rd., was fined $100 and costs on an assault charge filed by Virginia Burkhard. Acting Judge John Case suspended $75 of the fine provided that Ms. Elliott not trespass on the property of Ms. Burkhard.

She had entered a plea of not guilty.

Donald E. Cooper, 27, of 1129 Willard St., was fined $35 and costs after pleading guilty to a check fraud complaint. The $6 check was cashed at the Stop 'n Go Store June 23.

Richard E. Kemp, Prairie Road, was found guilty of an assault complaint filed by Marvin L. Hale and was fined $75 and costs. He pleaded not guilty.

An assault charge filed against Kenneth M. Yarger, 24, of 630 W. Circle Ave., was dismissed when the prosecuting witness, Mary Yarger, failed to appear in court. She was assessed court costs.

Foreclosures Sought

Harold Hise, Fayette County treasurer, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against four property owners for non-payment of taxes. Those named in the suits and the amount of back taxes and penalties owed were Charles M. and Linda K. Little, $380.08; Harold T. and Ruth A. Leisure, $453.42; Charles and Emma Glispie, $175.34; Freda Dunlap, $159.94. The plaintiff asks that the properties on which the taxes are owed be sold in order that the judgement be paid.

SUIT DISMISSED

A suit filed by Richard Allen, 310 E. Elm St., against the Grange Mutual Casualty Co., Columbus, has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court. The suit stemmed from an auto accident on March 26, 1975 in which Allen was injured. He had charged that the insurance company had failed to honor his claims and asked, in the suit, for $5,000 in compensatory damages and $5,000,000 in punitive damages. The case was dismissed because the plaintiff failed to state grounds on which relief could be granted.

Toledo bishop raps Mrs. Ford over 'moral issues' remarks

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford has been sharpely criticized by the Roman Catholic bishop here for her remarks on "moral issues" during a recent television interview.

"Since your comments have been widely reported in the news media," Bishop John A. Donovan said in a letter to Mrs. Ford, "I feel compelled to inform the 330,000 membership of this diocese through the publication of this letter that I have taken strong exception to your erroneous and irresponsible position on these matters of crucial moral and religious importance."

Mrs. Ford was interviewed Aug. 10 on the CBS program "60 Minutes."

In his letter, the Bishop said in part: "I find for instance that your permissive if not encouraging attitude toward premarital sex fitlessly dismissed the edifying efforts of millions of Americans who, deeply committed to the proud Judaeo-Christian traditions of our country, heroically support moral values that uphold human dignity and the sacredness of sexuality. Any permissiveness which dismisses those values likewise weakens the very fiber of our society.

"The indication that your like or dislike of your daughter's choice of companion's would influence your parental reaction to a hypothetical affair reveals a tragic disgregard of moral principles."

In answer to an interviewer's question, Mrs. Ford had said she would not be surprised if her daughter Susan, 18, told her she was having a premarital affair. But she added: "I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject and I'd want to know pretty much about the young man she was having the affair with."

Mrs. Ford also said: "Our family was brought up on the fact that marriage is the greatest thing in the world."

Bomb explodes at Alioto home

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded early today at the home of Mayor Joseph L. Alioto as he attempted to mediate a pay dispute which sent most of the city's police on strike.

A sign was found on the front lawn saying, "Don't Threaten Us," but Alioto said he did not think there was any connection between the explosion and the police strike. The mayor had threatened large-scale dismissals and arrests of strike leaders if the two-day walkout continued.

The blast shattered windows and severely damaged the front door and concrete pedestals on the front porch of the Alioto home, but officials said no one was injured.

Alioto's wife, Angelina, who was in an upstairs room, "seemed stunned — dazed," said Bill Rolph, a security guard in the Presidio Terrace neighborhood where the Alioto home is located.

Alioto rushed to the house from the hotel where negotiations were being held, and strike negotiations were postponed until later today.

Bill O'Brien, Alioto's news secretary, said the hand-lettered sign found after the bomb exploded at 12:15 a.m. also carried a swastika symbol.

Alioto said, "No, I don't believe the police or the police strike had anything to do with it."

Visibly shaken, he added, "We have a lot of people fishing in troubled waters. We have a lot of sick people."

Alioto, who strolled through the seamy Tenderloin district at nightfall Tuesday, had said earlier that leaders of the strike faced arrest if they continued to ignore a court order directing a return to work.

"We are going into court and ask for a warrant of arrest or an appearance before that court," he said in a special address broadcast Tuesday night. Who would arrest the striking policemen remained an unanswered question.

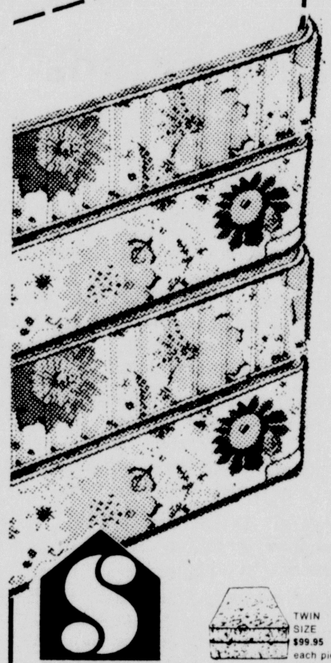

Alioto caucused with local labor leaders and members of the board of supervisors late into the evening, and board president Dianne Feinstein said they were awaiting a police response to an unspecified offer.

But Gerald Crowley, head of the striking Police Officers Association, said earlier that he held out little hope that the board would come up with an acceptable offer. He said the union had no plans to meet again with the board until later today.

"All essential police services are being performed, and there is no existing present danger," the mayor assured the city's 677,000 residents. He vowed that unless the strikers began reporting for work, "we are going to begin dismissal proceedings against all of them."

The strike by an estimated 90 per cent of the 1,300 rank-and-file policemen in the 1,935-man department entered its second day without major traffic tieups or outbreaks of lawlessness. Supervisory personnel continued to man telephones and keep about half the city's 60 prowl cars on the streets.

The possibility that the bells of cable cars would be stilled and fire protection severely curtailed also faced the city. Transit workers have set a midnight Thursday strike deadline and firemen continued to take a strike vote of their own.

Nigeria being choked by new prosperity

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Correspondent

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — "This nation is being strangled by its own prosperity. It's like a newly wealthy man switching from a meager diet to a rich one. His arteries start clogging up and he is in danger of suffering heart failure."

The African diplomat was bewailing the endless frustrations and complications of life in the capital city of Black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

As he talked, a stream of cars inched its way along the road outside. In the sea lanes leading to Lagos, Nigeria's most important port, more than 280 ships, laden with commodities essential for Nigeria's existence and growth, queued for berths.

In the crowded, vibrant streets of the city, a new breed of Nigerian entrepreneur who has managed to cash in on the nation's massive oil wealth rubs shoulders with peanut vendors and impoverished inhabitants of shanty towns who are finding it daily more difficult to make ends meet as the cost of living soars.

There are constant shortages of milk, gasoline, beer and other items of daily life here despite the fact that last year Nigeria earned $8.8 billion dollars from oil.

Lagos is not entirely representative of life in the rest of the country. But it is here that the dreams, aspirations and fears of the nation crystallize. And over the past few months many residents of the capital have been predicting that something had to give.

Late last month their forecasts came true. As he attended the organization of African Unity summit in Uganda, Gen. Yakabu Gowon was ousted as Nigerian head of state. After nine years of uninterrupted power he was toppled by a handful of dissatisfied brigadiers and colonels who no longer felt he had the authority or capacity to rule.

The new military rulers, headed by 38-year-old Brig. Murtala Muhammed, charged that he had become isolated from the people and was allowing the direction of state affairs to drift to such an extent that the nation's 65-70 million people were again threatened by "bloodshed and chaos."

Nigeria is a conglomeration of some 250 often quarrelsome tribal groupings, divided by religion and culture.

The arid, windswept north is predominantly Moslem, but Christians predominate in the tropical south. Other Nigerians follow their traditional religious customs.

It was Gowon's repeatedly stated desire to weld them irrevocably into one nation. Even his critics agree that he laid the foundations.

Part of the key to his success was Nigerian oil. Fueled by international increases in oil prices, Nigerian coffers were flooded by foreign exchange. But this year falling demand for oil worldwide is expected to cut Nigerian revenues by some $2 billion.

It was the spurt in oil revenues that earlier this year allowed Gowon to award massive pay hikes to civil servants and also launch an ambitious $48 billion, five-year development program. It was designed to create an industrial revolution, boost stagnant agriculture toward self-sufficient opportunities for all Nigerians.

But the pay increases, ranging from 30 to 130 per cent, sparked a series of strikes for similar awards in the private sector, which were met under government pressure.

Yet at least 90 per cent of the nation, reliant on a hand-to-mouth existence from the land, derived little benefit.

As the minority went on a spending spree, inflation soared from 13 to more than 30 per cent.

In addition, as newspapers here have been pointing out in the past week, disillusionment with Gowon's government was further accentuated by a string of broken promises.

These included undertakings to return Nigeria to civilian rule next year, to replace or reshuffle Nigeria's governors then under fire for corruption, and to create new states to make the existing 12 more representative of local aspirations.

Most Nigerians welcomed Gowon's removal. They are biding their time, however, before embracing the new rulers.

One Nigerian summed up the situation: "We are in the position of a man sitting back with his arms folded. We are awaiting events. We very much want the best for our country. We hope the new military rulers will not let us down. We hope they will overcome the crisis of rising expectations and unfilled desires."

Time capsules for insects developed

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — An Akron scientist says controlled-release capsules similar in concept to some head cold remedies are being intensively studied as a way to protect farmers' crops from voracious insects.

Nate Cardarelli, associate professor of general technology at the University of Akron, says research was stepped up on controlled-released pesticides because of widespread concern over massive doses of such chemicals as DDT.

"Controlled release offers a heck of a lot of promise to control pests with much less environmental contamination than conventional pest-control methods," he said.

Cardarelli, a leading scientist at the field, was asked by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to write a book about the capsules.

In the book, "Controlled Release Pesticides Formulation," Cardarelli discusses such topics as antifouling materials, snail control and various plant, insect and rodent killers.

Cardarelli's main area of expertise is snail control. He said snails are responsible for many human deaths in tropical and Asiatic lands.

The snails carry miscroscopic worms which enter the human body by contact with the snails. The worms, which can destroy a person internally, also destroy the snails, he said.

Cardarelli, whose book will come out in November, is to keynote an international symposium on controlled-release pesticides at Wright State University in Dayton later this year. He coordinated a similar meeting at Akron last year.

Egypt has textile plants, chemical, steel, cement and fertilizer factories and a film industry supplying the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

Tests set on game day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio State University students will be taking final exams during the OSU-Michigan football game Nov. 22. They can blame it on the school's fuel-saving class schedule for 1975-76.

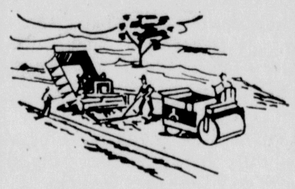

The four days of final exams are to begin on the day of the traditional rivalry game at Ann Arbor.

Under the new calendar developed last spring, the autumn quarter's 47 class days begin Sept. 16 and end Nov. 21.

Some students have complained the starting date means quitting summer jobs earlier than usual. Administrators believe students can make up lost summer earnings during the Christmas vacation, more than a month long.

Commencement is set for Nov. 26 and classes for the winter quarter start Jan. 5.

Cardinals trim Cincy, 2-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds have been set on their heels by Lynn McGlothen's fast balls and have at least one commiserator.

"He was pitching the inside corner, he was pitching the outside corner," McGlothen's battery mate, St. Louis Cardinals catcher Ted Simmons, said Tuesday night.

"It's kind of hard to guess where it's going to be," added Simmons, who was on the receiving end of 10 McGlothen strikeout pitches, including seven at which the Reds failed to offer in a 2-1 Cards win.

"No one was caught looking at the curve except (Merv) Rettenmund," the Cards catcher noted. "I can't see where he could have thrown any better. He's thrown as hard but not with that much control."

McGlothen, who boosted his record to 13-9 with a four-hitter, was called for his utmost in precision at the outset while halting a string of Cincinnati victories at nine.

Pete Rose opened for the Reds with a double over the third base bag and Ken Griffey beat out a bunt.

Joe Morgan rammed a high delivery to deep center field for a sacrifice fly scoring the Cincinnati run, then McGlothen slammed the door beginning with a strikeout of Johnny Bench.

"Here in St. Louis it's probably the best I've pitched," acknowledged McGlothen, a righthander who delivered 115 pitches and walked only Morgan.

"I had perfect control," he said. "I had them hitting my pitch. With these guys, I had to."

A mound duel in which McGlothen bested Gary Nolan, 11-7, was decided only a half inning after Cincinnati scored.

Bake McBride slammed a single up the middle with one out and scored to third on Willie Davis' double. Nolan had scarcely recovered from the blows when Simmons singled to score McBride and afterward Ted Sizemore snapped the tie with the Cards' fourth hit.

McGlothen hurled hitless ball after the third and was tagged hard only by Bench's long drive to left for the second out in the ninth inning.

Bill Virdon and the Pittsburgh Pirates are back in business ... but at opposite ends of the National League.

The Pirates, who had lost six in a row and 11 of their last 12 games, blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0 behind Jerry Reuss' three-hit pitching and reclaimed sole possession of first place in the NL East.

Meanwhile, Virdon, who managed the Bucs in 1972-3, made his debut as pilot of the Houston Astros — dead last in the West and the only team in baseball without at least a mathematical chance at a division title — and directed them to a 6-3 loss at the hands of the New York Mets.

The Philadelphia Phillies, who had been tied with Pittsburgh, fell one game back when the Atlanta Braves beat them 6-4 on Dave May's two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning. The St. Louis Cardinals remained 2½ out by edging the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 as Willie Davis returned from five days of self-exile with two singles, a double and a triple and Lynn McGlothen hurled a four-hitter.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and the Montreal Expos trimmed the San Diego Padres 5-0.

Al Oliver drove in two runs with a homer and double and Richie Zisk also homered as the Pirates returned from a 2-12 road trip during which they squandered a four-game lead.

Mets 6, Astros 3

Del Unser and Wayne Garrett hit solo home runs and Jerry Grote had a two-run double as the Mets spoiled the debut of Virdon, who was fired earlier this month as manager of the New York Yankees and hired Tuesday to replace Preston Gomez with Houston.

Jon Matlack, who hadn't pitched in 17 days because of an auto accident and a head cold, blanked the Astros until the ninth when he gave up a double to Enos Cabell and two-out home runs to Cesar Cedeno and Cliff Johnson.

Braves 6, Phillies 4

May was sent up to bat for Max Leon, who pitched 6 1-3 shutout innings of relief as Atlanta wiped out an early 4-0 deficit. Rookie Rob Belloir had singled before May hit his game-winning homer off Gene Garber.

Dodgers 2, Cubs 1

Lee Lacy's triple and John Hale's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning produced the winning run while Don Sutton and Mike Marshall held Chicago to two hits. Sutton was lifted for a pinch hitter after allowing only one hit in six innings.

Expos 5, Padres 0

Steve Rogers scattered 10 hits and Montreal scored three unearned runs in the first inning on two errors.

Rangers 2, Indians 1

Texas Manager Frank Luchessi went against the baseball book and lived to talk about it. That famous guide to winning baseball games warns never to put the winning run on base but Luchessi ordered hot-hitting Boog Powell to be walked intentionally.

The strategy worked when Ed Crosby flied out to end the game.

How about spending a fun-filled fall in a touch football league?

The newly created Ohio Touch Football Association has announced that a total of 18 Ohio leagues from 17 cities have received membership certificates.

The 18 leagues, and any new ones that join the Association, are eligible to field teams in the state tournament for men over 18-years-old this fall.

Leagues desiring to join the Association and compete in the tournament should contact Commissioner John Kovach, 714 E. Judson St., Youngstown. Individuals or cities wishing to create leagues can receive assistance from the association.

Tournament competition will be staged under National Touch Football Rules, with seven-man teams playing over an 80-yard field. Tourney sites will rotate every year with each member city having the opportunity to be the host.

Some of the cities already signed up for the association are Columbus, Grove City, Urbana and Xenia.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY has relayed more definite plans for former Miami Trace standouts Jay Mossbarger, Jeff Sagar and Tom Riley during the upcoming season.

Capital will run from the slot-I on offense and the coaching staff has tabbed Riley and Sagar as "fine running athletes that could fit into our offensive picture in the near future" after seeing high school game films of the two ex-Panthers.

Capital's 4-4-3 defense alignment will place Mossbarger at defensive end on the front-four line. After watching the All-Ohio selection in game films, the Capital coaches were impressed with his "aggresive hitting and tackling ability".

ANOTHER FAYETTE COUNTY former prep gridder will be on hand for the opening of Murray State University's summer workouts besides captain Jay Waddle.

Former Blue Lion Doug Willis, who was redshirted as a freshman, has a shot at a guard position for Murray State.

The 6-foot-205-pounder's brother, Dale, started three years for Murray State on the offensive line.

NERO, THE 'SUPERSTAR' pacer, who is without a doubt the best three-year-old harness horse in the country this year, has some strong ties with Fayette County.

The wonder horse's dame La Byrd Abbe out of Lana Byrd was raised by Washington C.H.'s John Sagar.

Sagar sold La Byrd Abbe in 1966 to Mrs. W.H. Wyatt of Franklin, Tennessee. The mare's first first foal was Nero.

A BENEFIT SOFTBALL tournament for the American Legion Baseball team will be held over Labor Day with all proceeds from the event going towards new uniforms and equipment for the Court House team next year.

Organizer Ron Helmick said he needs umpires to donate their time for the tourney which will be held in Eyman Park. Umpires wishing to support the Legion team can call Helmick in the evenings at 335-4369.

Entry fee for the tourney is $50 and the drawing is slated for Monday at 7 p.m. in Eyman Park.

A number of trophies will be given and interested teams should call Helmick or Chester Estep (335-1985).

TENNIS ENTHUSIASTS have a chance to compete in another tournament this summer as Greenfield plans to host an event on the new Mitchell Park Courts from Aug. 29 to September 7.

Most of the matches will be held on the weekends and participants in the Washington City Tennis tourney are invited to attend.

Entry fee is $2 for singles events and $3 for doubles play. Interested players should contact Rose Ann Brownell (513-981-4527).

Scioto to feature top trotters

Seven of the ten three-year-old trotters, who qualified for the championship of the Ohio Sires Stakes Series, will answer the call to the post Thursday night at Scioto Downs in quest of a portion of the $14,770 purse and the trophy symbolic of the sophomore trotting supremacy.

As expected the race looms as the final showdown between the classic world champion, Excellent Tad, and the piston-legged Bill Coy, both installed as co-favorites on the early line.

Excellent Tad, owned by Joe Cowden, Ed Crider, and Chuck Bewley of Medina, and reined by George Mueller. has won in 2:03 twice this year. Once at Scioto Downs in his division in the Scarlet and Gray Cup Series, and once at The Meadows in his division of the Currier & Ives stake. Last year, the bold going son of Lincoln Land Tad, stepped off a handsome mile in 2:06 at Scioto Downs to claim the world record for two-year-old trotting geldings over a five-eights mile track.

Bill Coy, owned by Barton Holl of Logan and driven by son-in-law Dick Brandt, won his division of the Scarlet and Gray Cup in 2:04.2 after winning a race at The Meadows in 2:03.2.

Bright spots begin to show in county grid practices

The two Fayette County grid coaches report that their respective teams are shaping up a little better after contact drills were started Monday.

Washington Blue Lion coach Maurice Pfeifer said that several of his players are beginning to show as "bright spots" to the coaching staff, even though the Lions turned in a disappointing early morning practice Tuesday in the hitting department.

Pfeifer said the afternoon practice went better and praised the blocking of guards Brian Haines and Greg Huysman along with tackles Dan Dean and Kevin Pfeifer.

The Blue Lions have been devoting about twenty minutes each session to the kicking game and Randy Gardner has been tabbed with the punting chores. Pfeifer reports that the punt receiving team, a sore spot last year for the Lions, has been coming along fine.

The passing game has been getting considerable attention in recent days as four quarterbacks are getting a good look over. Senior Greg Marti seems to have the inside tract to the signal-calling job with senior Tom Anderson and juniors Mark Heiny and Kevin Bonecutter also working out in the position.

Coach Pfeifer also reports that he has a "bevy" of fine receivers this season.

No injuries have been reported since the contact drills began Monday, but three gridders have missed some practice time with ankle sprains.

The Blue Lion squad increased to 50 gridders with the addition of Chuck Marshall, a senior split-end from Wilmington, and Martin Putney, a 6'1", 195-pound tackle from Georgia. The two newcomers have yet to suit up for the contact drills, because of the four-day acclimation policy.

The Washington C.H. gridders held their annual picnic Monday night at Washington Park with nearly 250 persons attending.

Panther coach Fred Zechman ran his team through a scrimmage Monday morning to open the first day of contact drills. The Trace coaching staff viewed the video tape of the scrimmage and used the Monday afternoon practice to correct mistakes.

Zechman said he was pleased with Tuesday's contact drills singling out the defensive work of Greg Cobb, Steve Wilson and Bruce Ervin while praising the offensive blocking of Jack James and Sam Grooms.

The afternoon practice was devoted to the offense as the Panthers worked on their timing and defense reading. Sophomores Art Schlichter and Shane Riley are still considered the prime quarterback candidates.

The Panther coaching staff also singled out the running of halfbacks Ervin and Bill Warnock and were exceptionally pleased with the running and blocking of fullback Rex Coe.

Both teams are gearing towards the first interscholastic scrimmage slated for Saturday.

Kern will hold free grid clinic

Former Ohio State grid star Rex Kerns will be on hand for a free football clinic in the Washington Middle School gymnasium Sunday at 3 p.m.

The clinic is sponsored by the Pony Football Association and is geared to coaches, parents and Pony League age football players.

Kern, who was an all-American at Ohio State and just recently retired from pro football, will explain equipment and techniques that are deemed suitable for young gridders. There will also be an autograph session and the public is invited to the clinic.

Fifth and sixth graders wishing to play Pony League Football this season can sign up for the league and weigh in for the first time Sunday. The remaining two weigh-in dates are slated for September 2 and 3.

Water a must for summer athletes

With prep grid squads and marching bands preparing for the opening of the football season by practicing daily in the intense late summer heat and humidity, it is a good time to review ways to avoid heat illnesses.

Dr. Robert Murphy, who is one of the nation's leading medical authorities on the prevention and treatment of heat illness and who also serves as head physician for the Ohio State football team, said the replacement of fluids is a must for summer athletes.

"It was once the rule rather than the exception that drinking water be withheld during workouts in extremely hot or humid weather," reported Dr. Miller, "but thanks to an aggressive educational program over the past five years on the part of the Ohio State Medical Association and the Ohio High School Athletic Association most athletic coaches and band supervisors are taking proper precautions for their young charges."

Although most high school coaches are well aware of the "give them water" advice, some concern rests with independent coaches in such sports as Pony League Football here in Washington C. H.

For those coaches who still adhere to banning water from the practice or game field, Dr. Murphy said an adequate supply of drinking water would be made available on the practice field.

Murphy suggested that if no water supply is made available young athletes should be encouraged to bring a thermos of ice water to each practice session.

"Most colleges, high schools, junior high schools and little leagues are now providing unlimited fluid replacement, but a few still may be following the absolute regimen that most of their coaches had learned," Murphy said. "Again, the most important replacement item is water. Salt and other substances are very secondary," he added.

Early conditioning should be conducted in shorts and should start at about 30 minutes a day and gradually increase to a two-hour practice session. Such an acclimitzation program is required by high schools, but coaches who are not bound to this rule are urged to adopt it.

Coaches should know the environmental conditions such as temperature and humidity at the start of each practice. If the humidity exceeds 90 per cent practice should be cancelled.

Identify the most susceptible individuals to heat illnesses. They are the stockier athletes with a large muscle mass or an overweight condition.

"Again," Dr. Murphy repeated, "don't hesitate to fill the thermos with ice water for use at the practice field."

Sea Lion Thrives On Special Diet

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dissolved herring, whipped cream, lard and vitamins, whipped in a blender and served up in a baby bottle, helped Hulk reach his first birthday.

Now Hulk gobbles whole herrings through strong, sharp teeth and spends his time learning how to be a sea lion, says Brad Andrews, assistant curator of mammals at the Marineland aquatic zoo on the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

"He eats herring, smelts, squid, he'll grab anything," says Andrews. Like most members of his barking, seal-like breed, Hulk is not a bit fussy about his diet.

Hulk was his mother's first pup and the kid was about two weeks premature, the animal keeper explained in a recent interview.

"The mother was weak — many sea lions have trouble with their first pup — and she didn't pay much attention to the pup after he didn't respond to her calls."

So employes checked with researchers around the country and evolved the fishy, frothy, sweet formula that sustained the little mammal for his first year of life.

By his first birthday, June 7, Hulk had a long way to go before reaching full size of 600 or 700 pounds. But he tipped the scales at a respectable 12 pounds, his brown coat sleek and his body healthy, Andrews said.

To give the premature pup the care he needed, Andrews or one of his assistants took Hulk home each night.

"He basically stayed in the bathtub, which was lined with plenty of paper. Sea lions," Andrews says, "cannot be housebroken."

Now Hulk lives with another sea lion his own age to learn how to get along with his own species.

Within a year, Andrews says, Marineland officials will decide if Hulk is docile and intelligent enough to be trained as a show animal.

Sea lions can be taught to perform tricks — balancing balls, rolling over or covering their eyes.

Already Hulk is learning a variety of activities with his new friend.

The two "play" together a lot. They play in the water, they scare each other, they play with their food, says Andrews.

"He doesn't particularly care for me. He just sort of looks at me, and opens his mouth like he's going to go after me. But he's got his friends, some of the other pups and some of his feeders," Andrews said.

Sea lions, which live around California's Channel Islands, would never attack a human.

"They'll only defend themselves. They have pretty sharp teeth, though, and even a young pup can inflict a pretty good wound if cornered or threatened," Andrews says.

Professional liability snag rises

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Two lawyers who are part-time public officials in Napoleon have been unable to get malpractice insurance to cover them in their public jobs.

Sources within the insurance industry said the earlier malpractice problems of doctors may be a sign of the times for all professional people, especially those who mix public and private practice.

Marlow Witt, Napoleon's law director, and Ronald P. Lankenau, a municipal judge, said they haven't been able to find insurance to cover them in their city jobs.

When they renewed their professional liability policies, they discovered they weren't covered from lawsuits lodged against them as public officials.

Both are continuing their public duties, but they said they thought they were doing so at a risk.

An insurance industry spokesman said problem is the result of an increasing number of lawsuits against professionals of all sorts, especially those who mix public and private affairs.

"I'm not sure you could call it a trend," said Douglas Avery, vice president of the Ohio Independent Insurance Agents Association in Columbus, "but it is obvious that professional liability is going to be an increasingly difficult line to insure."

Few lawyers, he said, pay into insurance pools to offset the high cost of lawsuits and thus are among the more susceptible to higher insurance costs and a scarcity of malpractice insurance.

Witt, Napoleon's law director for 13 years, asked City Council to assume the risk for himself, Lankenau and other municipal court employes who might be named in a lawsuit. Council took the request under advisement.

Clerk-Treasurer Rupert Schweinhagen said a search for new coverage is underway. He said the firm which insures city police refuses to add other city officials to the policy.

Both Witt and Lankenau said the city must either obtain the coverage or agree to pay legal fees and judgments in case they are sued. "Under these new civil rights laws, you can sue for anything," Witt said.

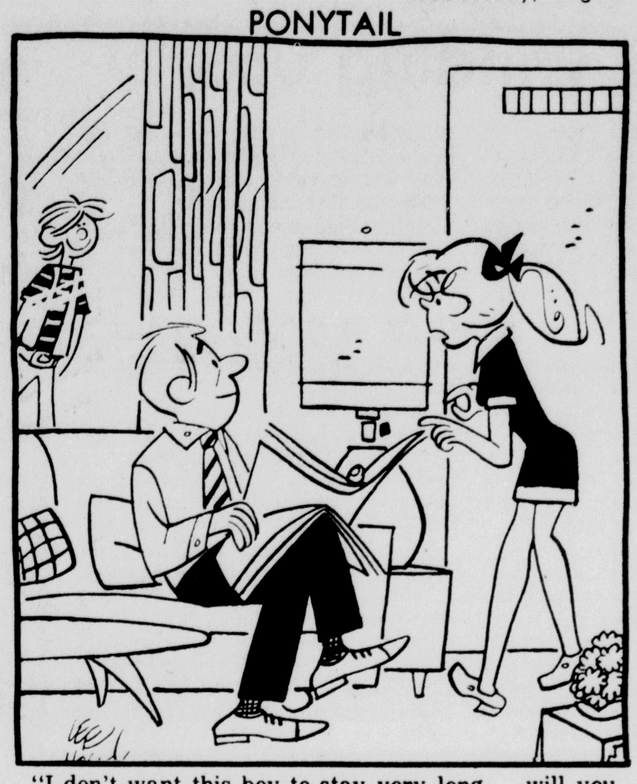

Witt, however, said he has been sued once in his years as law director. It was a civil rights suit that he said was quickly dismissed. He said he also recalled one medical malpractice suit being filed here in 16 years.

Lankenau took objection to one insurance agent's view that the lawyers have themselves to blame because of their role in the growing number of lawsuits.

"It's often blamed on lawyers, but lawyers don't grant verdicts," he said. "Laymen grant verdicts."

Byron White, one-time football star and later deputy attorney general, was named an associate justice of the Supreme Court by President John Kennedy on March 30, 1962, to take the place of retiring Justice Evans Whittaker of Missouri.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

Opening lead - ace of spades.

This deal occurred in the match between Israel and Denmark during the 1972 World Bridge Olympiad. It demonstrates two important points. One is that there is such a thing as a player being overly cautious in the bidding, and the other is that it is better to take a small loss by intentionally overbidding, than to pass and possibly take a large loss.

When Schwartz and Stampf held the North-South cards for Israel at the first table, they got to four hearts on the bidding shown and made ten tricks for a score of 420 points.

West's pass of one heart is difficult to understand. Most players would either double one heart or overcall with two diamonds, and they assuredly would not resolve the choice by taking no action at all. The pass by West was much too timid, and eventually proved very expensive.

When Denmark held the North-South cards at the second table, the bidding was much more spirited. It went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dble	3 ♣	4 ♠
5 ♣	5 ♦	Pass	Pass
5 ♥	5 ♠	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dble

Here both sides bid their cards forcibly and well, the Danish North finally winding up at six clubs doubled and going down two — 300 points — for a team loss of 720 points.

North judged that his vulnerable opponents could make five spades, worth 650 points, and he bid six clubs knowing that he could not make that contract but that the sacrifice was worth while. His only losers were a spade, a heart and a diamond.

Interference with Blood Supply

Almost every night I am awakened from a deep sleep with a feeling of numbness and a tingling of the arms. Then I can't get back to sleep. In the morning I'm exhausted. What can I do about it?

Mr. D.L., Iowa

Dear Mr. L.

Such sensations almost always indicate that there is some temporary interference with the proper blood supply.

The fact that it occurs during the night indicates that your sleeping position may be a factor.

Pressure from the weight of the body acts almost like a tourniquet and interferes with proper circulation.

When you are awake and the pressure of your position is removed, the numbness probably disappears as the blood once more surges through your arm.

Sometimes an anatomical variation of a blood vessel may be responsible. Tobacco, too, may be a cause.

The likelihood is that there is no great reason for concern about this problem other than its affecting your sleep.

A study of your circulatory system can easily be accomplished and will alleviate your anxiety.

Learning to sleep in another position may relieve you of this discomfort.

I can't get diet pills any more. Is there any other way to curb the appetite?

Miss M.O'N., Pa.

Dear Miss O'N.:

And a good thing, too! The abuse and dependence on diet pills was becoming a national calamity. Government regulations rightfully were imposed on these drugs. Their use is now limited to medical problems and must be given under the direction of a doctor for those purposes only.

Unfortunately, these pills, particularly the amphetamines, can produce marked nervousness and irritability, raise the blood pressure, increase a heart rate and adversely affect the circulatory system and other organs of the body.

Soon you will learn, as others have, that you, and you alone, must curb your appetite in order to lose weight. Depending on drugs to do a job for you is fraught with danger.

Kent State case winding up

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A final witness was scheduled to take the stand today as victims of the 1970 Kent State University shootings challenged testimony that a civilian fired the first shot of the volley that felled 13 students five years ago.

If examination and cross-examination of W. E. Gerstenslager is short, attorneys might begin final arguments today, the lawyers said.

That would increase the likelihood that the jury would receive the case Thursday after the judge defined the issues and explained the law, court sources said.

Gerstenslager was identified as a former Kent State student who shared a ride home after the shooting with a defense witness who said a man in a sport coat fired a pistol in the air on the campus hillside where the gunfire erupted.

The defense witness, Joy Bishop of Canton, said Ohio National Guardsmen wheeled and shot at student demonstrators a split second after the man fired.

The shooting killed four students and wounded nine and the victims and their families are suing for $46 million in damages. The defendants include Gov. James A. Rhodes, former Kent State President Robert I. White and 27 former or present guardsmen.

The deadly 13-second volley came as guardsmen attempted to break up a campus antiwar rally May 4, 1970, after a weekend of rioting. The three nights of demonstrations that preceded the incident broke out after then-President Richard Nixon revealed the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia.

Two other students who Mrs. Bishop said watched from a dormitory rooftop with her also took the stand Tuesday. Bruce Phillips of Columbus, and Pat Frank Rivera of North Olmsted said there was no civilian in the area just before the shooting started.

Phillips said a man wearing a sport coat and carrying a pistol ran from the area five minutes after the shooting. Terrence Norman of Washington, D.C., has testified he pulled a gun on the hill to ward off attacks by demonstrators he was photographing for campus police.

Norman, who was wearing a sport coat, was chased to guardsmen's lines where he surrendered the pistol to a campus policeman. Norman and the policeman who said he received the handgun testified it had not been fired.

The victims also called a former New York City medical examiner to contest a defense claim that one student was wounded by a shot from a nonmilitary weapon.

Dr. Milton Helpern said Donald S. MacKenzie's neck wound "could readily be produced by a high-velocity bullet."

The defense had introduced testimony of an Army surgeon that the wound, which now is nearly invisible, probably was caused by a weapon much smaller than the .30-caliber rifles or .45-cal. pistols carried by the troops.

Garage burglary probed

A Washington C. H. man's garage was burglarized and a bad check was passed at Barnhart Oil, city police reported today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a theft incident at Deer Creek Reservoir.

A garage owned by Tom L. Coe, located behind his 636 High St. residence, was burglarized by someone who used a bolt cutter to break through two locks sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 2 a.m. Tuesday. Police reported a $50 drill, a $135 10-ton jack, and a $200 compressor with two spray guns and 50 feet of hose stolen.

The Barnhart Oil Co., 304 E. Market St., received a bad check for a tire purchase on June 16. Police reported a woman had entered the establishment to purchase a tire and a check with the bank verified she had an account, however her check bounced and she is no longer residing at the address she gave them.

A car belonging to Donald R. Bailey, Greenfield, was broken into while parked at the beach area at Deer Creek Reservoir. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported a citizens band radio, a case of 25 eight-track tapes and a pair of bluejeans containing Bailey's wallet stolen. The theft occurred around 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Terrorists said killed

HANITA, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops surrounded three Arab guerrillas in a wood near the border kibbutz of Hanita and killed them in a 30-minute battle, witnesses reported.

One Israeli soldier was reported wounded.

There was speculation that the guerrillas planned to try to make trouble during the visit of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who leaves Washington tonight for another attempt to complete negotiations of a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The troops held the guerrillas at bay for more than four hours before storming into the hilltop wood four miles from the Mediterranean.

Reinforcements who were rushed to the area provided a shield of men and armor between the wood and the fence surrounding the small farming community.

During the battle the guerrillas fired rocket grenades at the kibbutz but caused no damage or casualties there.
